Senator Stennis Awaits Pay Study

SENATE action on the House-passed retirement equalization pay bill now rests in large measure on an analysis of the bill which is being prepared by the Senate Armed Services Committee staff.

Senator John C. Stennis (D-Miss) told THE JOURNAL this week he is "having a study made of the questions involved" in the pay measure. He said: "The staff is going to give me a report as soon as possible and when I get the report, I will decide what we are going to do."

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass), ranking minority member on the Stennis Subcommittee on Military Pay, previously told THE JOURNAL (21 May) that he thinks the outlook for hearings "is pretty good."

Senator Stennis said he will be unable to make any decision about hearings until—Continued on page 17

Army Secretary Says Five-Year Progress Is "Astounding"; Hails Help From The Hill

JUNE is a big month for the United States Army and its civilian chief, Secretary Wilber M. Brucker.

On 14 June, which is also Flag Day, the Army will celebrate its 185th birthday. There will be parades at posts throughout the world. In Washington, D. C., for the first time in years, there will be a gala Birthday Ball.

On the eve of the celebrations, THE JOURNAL in an interview with Secretary Brucker asked for an assessment of Army progress and problems during the past five years.

It was on 22 June 1955 that President Eisenhower nominated then Department of Defense General Counsel Brucker—WWI Silver Star winner who—Continued on page 4

Chairman Vinson Wants An Answer

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee, who usually gets a rapid-fire response when he sends a letter to the Pentagon, has been waiting since 26 April for the Navy to tell him what it intends to do about promotion review for a commander who was passed over in WWII. See Page 7.

LOYALTY DOWN

Secretary Brucker has insisted always on "loyalty down as well as up."

He has demonstrated what he means by this in an unusual action to speed the promotion to colonel of an Army lieutenant colonel who is on the critical list at Walter Reed General Hospital. See Page 6.

Flaw In Navy-Marine Corps "Hump" Act Bars Force-Out Of Non-Academy Officers

UNLESS Congress completes emergency action before adjournment, the Navy will be barred from forcing the early retirement of "large numbers" of non-Academy officers under the "hump" law approved last year.

The Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee held hearings 8 June in an effort to iron out the complicated problem. It results from an unexpected flaw in the language of the "hump" act.

Before last August, when the "hump" act was approved, a Regular male Line officer on active duty in the Navy and Marine Corps, if he was a non-Academy graduate, determined his total commissioned service for involuntary retirement or separation by the commissioned service credited to a Naval Academy graduate or NROTC officer who had not lost numbers or precedence and who "is, or—Continued on page 31

Air Force Changes Criteria For Top Service School Selections In Effort To Meet "Hump" Problem In Promotion List

THE Air Force has revised the Colonel eligibility criteria for the National War College, Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Imperial Defense College, and Canadian National Defense College for the years FY 1962 through FY 1965 as follows:

Less than 22 yrs for FY 1962
Less than 23 yrs for FY 1963
Less than 24 yrs for FY 1964
Less than 25 yrs for FY 1965 and thereafter.

Headquarters said this criteria will provide for continued selection of colonels in the hump (those with promotion list service date (PLSD) from 1 September 1939 to 1 January 1941). Emphasis for selection will be for the most retainable colonels and will continue on that trend.

Limitations on the number of "hump" colonels who may attend these schools follows: Not more than 75% of the FY 62 classes will be composed of "hump" personnel; not more than 50% for FY 63 classes; not more than 25% for FY 64 classes; not more than 10% for FY 65 classes; and none for classes thereafter.

"The revised criteria will provide for high selectivity, will mesh the senior service school selection system with the current promotion program, and will insure a constant number of graduates on active duty when the hump colonels reach mandatory retirement dates," the Air Force said.

Army Corps Of Engineers Will "Personalize" Assignments For Officers; Eight Year Career Program Details Described

UNDER direction of the Assistant Chief for Personnel, Brig. Gen. W. C. Hall, the Army Corps of Engineers has instituted a "personalized" approach to officer assignments, highlighted by a pre-planned guide for individual career programs.

Col. Roy S. Kelley, Chief of the Military Personnel Division in the Office of the Chief of Engineers, Lt. Gen. Emerson C. Itschner, is supervising career management for more than 7000 officers and warrant officers.

Personnel administration of the 58,000 civilian members of the Corps is under direction of Mr. Robert F. Jacobs.

Attracting and retaining young engineers was cited by General Hall as "the most critical personnel problem in the Army Corps of Engineers."

"Since personnel strength is the basis for long run career management programs the retention of young officers in the Service is extremely important for continuity of the officer corps and for the revitalization effect these young officers have on the Army," he said.

General Hall explained that the pre-planned guide "is a series of career patterns which help the new officer identify his primary area of interest and ultimately results in a plan which serves as his career program for at least eight years. This permits the officer and his family to plan more realistically for the future."

The program "is not irrevocable," General Hall pointed out, "and can be amended by the individual or his career branch."

He added that "personalization is a keynote in the Corps of Engineers personnel operation which fosters the dual responsibility of the individual and his career branch in career development."

Experienced assignment officers plan assignments to give each officer the maximum opportunity for progressive development. The individual's career requirements and personal preference are studied, as well as his experience and proficiency.

Support of field commanders in implementing personalized career management has resulted in an increase in the retention rate from 10.2 per cent to 15.5%, moving toward the interim goal of 20%, General Hall reported.

Progressive career assignments are assisted by military and civil school programs designed to add professional polish to the on-the-job training benefits accrued from duty assignments. Over 38% of the officers holding engineering and related degrees have graduate degrees.

The magnitude of the personnel division's task in career planning is indicated by the variety of assignments and the strength of the Engineer Corps.

Assignments of military personnel range from troop duty to atomic research; from instructor in a service school to supervising the construction of flood control structures and military bases all over the world, including the most complex modern missile bases.

NEW JCS J-3

Maj. Gen. Fred M. Dean, Commander of Air Task Force 13, Provisional Pacific Air Force, Taiwan, will become Director, J-3 (Operations) of the JCS Joint Staff.

General Dean wears a second hat as Chief of the Air Force Section of the MAAG Taiwan.

His successor will be Maj. Gen. Kenneth O. Sanborn, Commander of the 42d Air Division, McConnell AFB, Kans.

banning families with FMF units overseas.

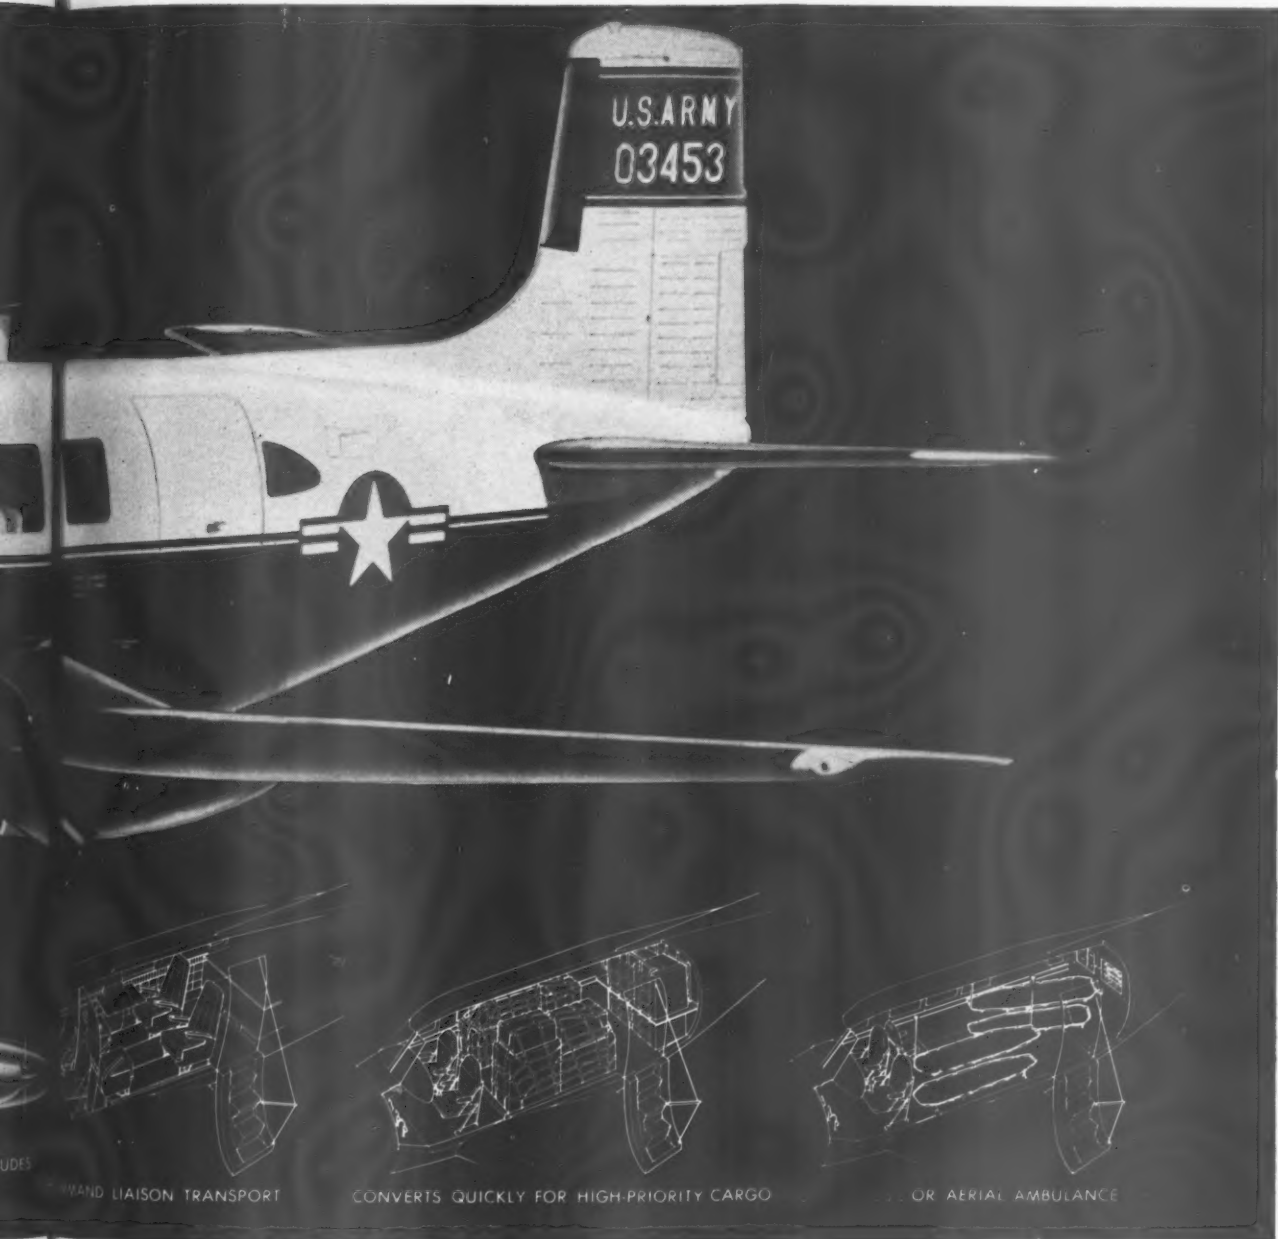

At the same time, General Shoup stated: "I am even more firmly convinced that a tour of 15 months is too long. I am going to take every action open to me to reduce the length of this tour and still maintain our posture of determined readiness."

In the six months since the Commandant's policy statement was issued, Headquarters personnel experts have been wrestling with the problem of how to reduce the 15-month tour.

The Marine Corps has been working on plans which could pare about two months from the FMF non-dependent tour.

A slice of two months from the 15-month requirement would require additional expenditures of about $2 million annually.

The problem has been complicated by the House action in eliminating the $73 million from the total of $732 million requested by the Administration for travel and station movements in the Services.

Army Secretary Brucker Tells Progress, Problems At 185th Birthday

was discharged as a first lieutenant on 5 June 1919—to be Secretary of the Army.

Secretary Brucker, who will be 66 on 23 June, described as "almost astounding" the gains which the Army has made during the past five years. He cited particularly the Army's achievement in launching the Free World's first satellite, Explorer I, and stressed the importance of the changeover to the Pentomic structure for the atomic battlefield.

The Secretary said that great strides have been made in improving the quality of small unit leadership—vital to the dispersion that makes the Pentomic organization.

"But whatever the great gains we have scored," said Secretary Brucker, "none of us in the Army can afford to stack arms and rest on our laurels."

The former Governor of Michigan said the formulation and implementation of the "One Army" concept, for which he gave great credit to General Bruce C. Clark, CG of the Continental Army tary Brucker said he wished to pay tribute to "the great assistance the Army is receiving from our dedicated legislators on Capitol Hill."

In mid-June, it seems certain that the Army will receive increased funds for modernization, in comparison with budget estimates presented in January.

On the personnel front, Secretary Brucker said that the past five years have been marked by a "heartening rise in the quality of our soldiers in all ranks."

He said: "I am particularly proud of the manner in which our promotion system is working." He noted that the Army has succeeded in avoiding unshapely promotion "humps" which have troubled some of the other Services.

Looking to the future, Secretary Brucker said: "I am confident that the modernization of the Army will go forward at a quickening pace."

Asked to comment on prospects for the Nike Zeus anti-missile missile, for which the Army has not received the full fiscal support voted by Congress, Secretary Brucker said:

"I am not one of those persons who becomes discouraged when there are difficulties along the road. Zeus is coming, I am confident of that. The project is right. The components have come through their tests with flying colors, and we have had some important breakthroughs."

The Secretary did not identify the breakthroughs, but emphasized repeatedly that the confidence which the Army demonstrated in the Explorer I feat "applies also to our careful work on the Zeus."

Secretary Brucker delivered the Commencement Address and presented commissions to 34 ROTC Cadets at Dickinson College 187th graduation ceremonies at Carlisle, Pa., on 6 June. He received the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws from President Gilbert Malcolm.

Lt. Col. William C. Pinson is PMS&T at Dickinson.

Command at Ft. Monroe, Va., "marks an important milestone in strengthening the combat readiness of the Army."

Secretary Brucker noted, however, that during the past five years there have been delays in providing modern weapons for the divisions in the Active and Reserve Forces.

"Last month during Project Man at Ft. Benning, Ga.," he recalled, "the Army was honored to parade 36 new pieces of equipment for President Eisenhower and Secretary of Defense Gates, but the fact is that it is taking too long to get these modern weapons into the hands of the troops, where they belong."

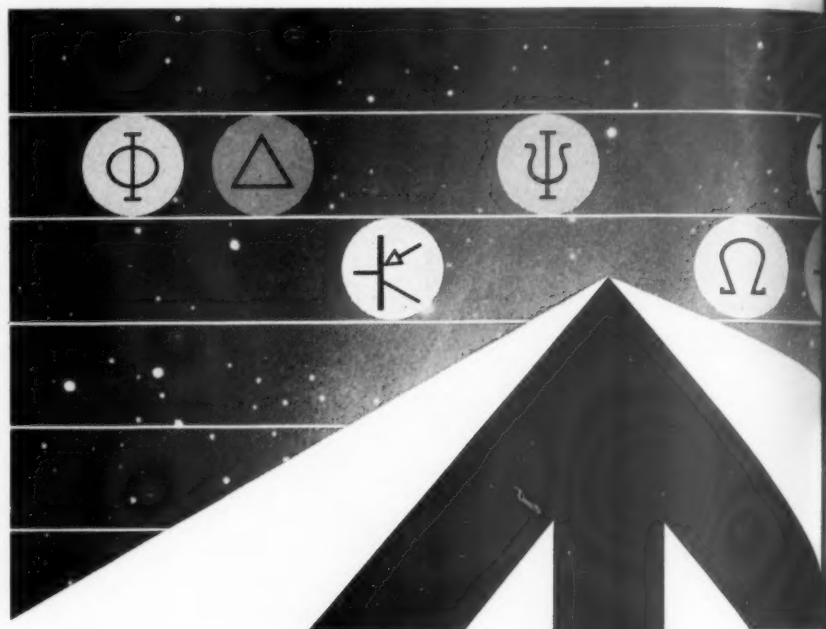

Secretary Brucker added that another 163 new Army items were displayed at Benning, with future procurement dependent on the availability of funds.

Secretary Speeds Colonel Promotion Of Critically Ill Officer, 34 Others

THE following 35 Army lieutenant colonels, including Lawrence A. Twomey, who is critically ill at Walter Reed General Hospital, were promoted to temporary colonel in S. O. 114, effective 6 June.

Based on previous promotion procedures, it would have been anticipated that 10 of these lieutenant colonels, who have long been on the recommended list, would have received their eagles this week.

The others, including Colonel Twomey, the junior man on the new promotion increment, would have been advanced later in the month.

When Secretary of the Army William M. Brucker learned that Colonel Twomey was on the critical list, he directed that the June colonel promotions be accelerated, so that all 35 could be made simultaneously.

This, of course, assures the full benefits of colonel rank for all the newly promoted officers as of 6 June.

NEW LIGHT ON RELIABLE DRIVE SYSTEMS

Go potential and grow potential, basically, are what make the Army's H-23D's entire drive system a valuable investment in helicopter technology and production.

GO—the entire system is rated for 1,000 hour life between major overhauls by both the U. S. Army and the Bureau of Aeronautics. Army H-23D Ravens, currently logging more than 7,000 hours per month at Camp Wolters, alone, are the first light helicopters ever to receive such confidence of the Military.

GROW—because the H-23D's drive system is presently loafing, the limits of its growth and development lie in helicopters yet to come—helicopters that will bring even further economies of production, integration and operation.

Designs are one thing. Deliveries another. Both come from

Review Commander's Record, Chairman Vinson Urges Navy Secretary

WHY has it taken the Navy 48 days (as this was written 8 June) to respond to a letter from Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee?

The answer to this question was snarled in an enigma this week. THE JOURNAL received two conflicting Navy replies to queries on the subject.

Chairman Vinson in a letter dated 21 April, has recommended that the Navy submit the case of Cdr. Edward White Rawlins, USN-Ret., to the Board for Correction of Naval Records.

For more than 10 years, the Navy steadfastly has refused to acknowledge that Commander Rawlins' case merits such review. The Commander, who lives in Washington, D. C., maintains that a war-time promotion panel lacked all of the essential records when it passed him over for promotion to captain.

Chairman Vinson notes in his letter that although the Navy Department has consistently turned down Commander Rawlins' plea for a BCNR review of his case, a number of senior Navy officers, including former Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Robert B. Carney, have continued to back the Commander.

The Armed Services Committee Chairman asked the Navy to submit the case to the Correction Board and let the Board make a decision to settle the matter "once and for all."

THE JOURNAL asked the Navy press desk at the Pentagon (6 June) if the case had been submitted to the BCNR and whether a reply had been sent to Chairman Vinson.

After checking with the Bureau of Naval Personnel, the press desk replied that the case had gone to the BCNR and that a reply was sent to Chairman Vinson on 10 May.

THE JOURNAL'S Congressional Editor asked the House Armed Services Committee if he could see the Navy letter. The Committee staff said no reply has been received.

This information was relayed to the Navy press desk which, in turn, suggested that a further check might be made directly through BuPers, since that Bureau had provided answers to THE JOURNAL'S questions.

A BuPers spokesman, when informed that Chairman Vinson had not received the "10 May" letter, remarked: "That's funny," and said a further check would be made. Later, the BuPers spokesman called back with the information that all further queries on the subject would be handled by an officer in the Office of the Navy's Chief of Information.

This officer, when contacted by THE JOURNAL, said he had "just received" the original query and the answers to the questions were that the case had not been submitted to the Correction Board, and that Chairman Vinson had not yet been provided with a reply to his letter.

A reply, however, "has been drafted," the officer said, "and is being prepared for signature."

When he was asked about the answers to the earlier

Now, all-weather power in a new Crusader I

The new F8U-2N Crusader shows how "growth potential" in fighter design makes sense. This all-weather fighter developed fast. Its basic engineering had been established and refined by the 500-plus Crusaders already with the Fleet. Their reliability and availability — proved by 250,000 hours of flight time and 25,000 catapult shots — accrued to the F8U-2N. And with this fighter, the flexible Crusader design once again "grew" to incorporate an advanced engine, improved accessory systems... new all-weather power for the Fleet. The F8U-2N is a product of Chance Vought's Aeronautics Division, developers of missiles, aircraft, ASW equipment and other products for atmospheric defense.

Air Force Revises Promotion Criteria For Colonel; New Lists Due

THE eligibility zone for promotion to permanent colonel in the Regular Air Force for Fiscal Years 1960 through 1962 will include all Regular permanent lieutenant colonels with dates of rank through 1959.

The eligibility zone for advancement to temporary colonel, starting in Fiscal Year 1961, will include all Regular permanent lieutenant colonels, as well as all temporary lieutenant colonels, with four years in grade.

Previous eligibility criteria for consideration to permanent colonel was based on specified amounts of promotion list service and was changed from year to year.

For promotion to temporary colonel, this criteria was four years time in grade as a temporary lieutenant colonel.

Previous criteria had been in effect since 1947 when a promotion plan was adopted that provided a 45% opportunity of selection for each new group of eligible officers.

USAF Headquarters said that continuation of this criteria would have resulted in insignia changes due to the small number of officers in the zone of eligibility.

It was reasoned that it would not be desirable to advance an officer under the permanent promotion system when he had failed promotion under the temporary system.

In addition, Headquarters explained, it would have precluded observation of the officer's performance in the temporary grade which is considered essential in view of the added tenure and eligibility

Air Force selection boards have chosen 1935 officers for temporary promotion to colonel and lieutenant colonel.

The colonel's board, which met 25 April, selected a total of 392, including 350 Line, two Chaplain, one Nurse, 11 Dental, six Medical Service, and 22 Medical Corps officers.

The lieutenant colonel's board, which convened a week earlier, named 1435 Line, 35 Medical, five Dental, 42 Chaplain, 13 Medical Service, and 13 Nurse Corps officers.

The entire slate of colonels and approximately half of the lieutenant colonels are expected to receive their new insignia about 13 June. The remaining half of the lieutenant colonel-selectees will be advanced as vacancies occur.

It is planned to publish the lists in next week's issue of The Journal.

Chairman Vinson Awaits Navy Reply

From preceding page—

questions, the officer said the BuPers spokesman "was confused." Then why had the BuPers spokesman given the "exact date" of a reply to Chairman Vinson, he was asked? "That was the date of your query," he replied.

THE JOURNAL query was made on 6 June. Advised of this fact, the ChInfo spokesman said he didn't know how the 10 May date got into the picture, but it was apparent that the BuPers spokesman "was confused."

In seeking the review of Commander Rawlins' case, Chairman Vinson urged that the Commander be given the right to appear personally, and that the board make a "complete review of all the voluminous records involved."

He said if the board approaches the matter "impartially," as he is "sure it will," that he is equally "sure the case can be settled once and for all."

Here is the text of Chairman Vinson's letter to Navy Secretary Franke:

"My dear Mr. Secretary:

"Since 1949, the Congress has had before it in one form or another the case of Commander Edward White Rawlins, USN-Ret., who has contended assiduously and without reservation that he was denied promotion to the grade of Captain, U.S. Navy, through a combination of errors on the part of the Navy through the old panel system which existed during World War II.

"I will not attempt to give you a résumé of the entire situation, but I am enclosing some data on this matter which Commander Rawlins has prepared.

"The Navy, as the Navy Department, has consistently opposed Commander Rawlins, while Naval officers, including Admiral Carney and many other high-ranking officers have just as consistently spoken in behalf of Commander Rawlins.

"Legislation does not seem to be the appropriate method for handling this matter, but I do think that the case should be considered carefully by the Board for the correction of Naval Records and a decision should be made once and for all.

"I trust you will agree with me that the proper procedure at this time is to award jurisdiction to the Board for the Correction of Naval Records in order that that board may consider this case in toto. This would include a personal appearance by Commander Rawlins, accompanied by counsel if he so desires, and a complete review of all the voluminous records involved. If this board approaches the matter impartially, as I am sure it will, and with a view toward doing that which is correct and just then I am sure the case can be settled once and for all.

"I would appreciate hearing from you on this matter in the near future."

Sincerely,

Carl Vinson,
Chairman

A3J—the most versatile Mach 2 airplane in the world today

Probing the horizons of the Free World, hovering on the fringes of tension areas, bolstering the cause of world peace by its mere presence in the sky—this is the job for the Navy's new A3J Vigilante.

Designed and built by the Columbus Division of North American Aviation, the A3J has a versatility unmatched by any other Mach 2 airplane in the skies today. It is equipped to handle a variety of nuclear or conventional weapons for either limited or all-out nuclear war. It has the speed and maneuverability to fly single-plane attack missions without fighter escort.

The Vigilante can fly through the stratosphere faster than the earth turns beneath it; yet can throttle down to comfortable landing speeds for carrier decks—or small fields ashore. It is also notable for prompt response characteristics that make it ideally suited for low-level missions over irregular terrain. Its speed and maneuverability plus the most advanced fire control systems known make it a single airplane with an outstanding dual capability—high-performance attack or long-range interception.

The A3J Vigilante truly is a significant addition to the U.S. arsenal dedicated to preserving world peace.

Marines Survey Billets To Assure Maximum General Officer Rank Eligibility

THE Marine Corps is evaluating all billets to insure that a maximum number of officers can meet the new requirement for service on a Joint, Combined, Allied or OSD Staff for promotion to one-star rank.

The list of billets will be submitted to the Secretary of the Navy for his consideration as fulfilling the Joint Staff service criteria.

Detailing of officers by Headquarters will take into consideration the need for joint duty "and every effort will be made to attempt to qualify the maximum number of officers."

"It is realized," Headquarters said, "that the number of subject staff billets may be insufficient to permit all eligible and outstanding officers to be assigned, during their normal careers, to such staffs."

"Therefore, increased reliance must be placed upon the use of other qualifying billets."

In Marine Corps Order 1611.2A, Headquarters directs: "All officers whose past duties have included a successful tour in a billet which has involved, as part of their normal duties, the planning or conduct of joint, combined, or allied operations, or has involved close contact and joint effort with officers of other Services, foreign nations, or higher echelons of our own government, but which may not be a matter of official record, should take appropriate measures to report such occasions to the Commandant for inclusion in their official records."

The requirement that officers—excluding those restricted in performance of duty—serve on a joint staff before being promoted to flag or general officer rank is detailed in DoD Directive 1320.5.

It states that qualifying duty shall be interpreted to include service with MAAG's which involve substantial joint, combined or allied activity and on commands or staffs which, as part of their normal duties, plan for or conduct joint, combined or allied operations as part of their normal duties.

The DoD Directive adds that recommendations of selection boards for promotion of officers to flag or general rank, sent to the President, shall have attached a brief memorandum certifying that all of those selected have fulfilled the joint staff requirement.

At the time the DoD Directive was issued, it was recognized that there was an adequate number of qualifying billets. A provision for individual waivers, approved by the Secretary of the Navy, was incorporated into the Defense Directive.

Each recommendation by a selection board for a waiver, approved by SecNav, must contain a complete justification, along with a brief of the individual officers career.

If waivers are granted, the officer's next duty assignment must be with a joint, combined, allied or Office of the Secretary of Defense staff, except in special circumstances authorized by the Defense Secretary.

The Defense Directive was followed by Secretary of the Navy Instruction 1412-4A which prescribes:

• That a detailing policy be pursued which will assure to the maximum extent the fulfillment of the requirement for duty on subject staffs or equivalent qualifying duty; and,

• All selection board precepts will contain the statement that full weight will be given to service in, and evaluation reports from, Joint, Combined, Allied and Office of the Secretary of Defense Staffs.

The new Marine Order advises reporting seniors that they are to "develop this information in the fitness reports of officers concerned, since it may be the only substantiating document of official record."

RADM. MUSTIN WILL BE ASW READINESS EXEC., KEY WEST COMMAND TO RADM. McELROY

RADM. Lloyd M. Mustin, Commander of the Key West Naval Base, will succeed RADM. Howard A. Yeager, Antisubmarine Warfare Readiness Executive to the Chief of Naval Operations.

Admiral Yeager has been named by President Eisenhower for three-star rank to replace VAdm. John Sylvester as Pacific Fleet Amphibious Force Commander. Admiral Sylvester becomes Deputy CNO (Logistics).

Admiral Mustin will be relieved in July by RADM. Rhodam Y. McElroy, jr., Commander, Carrier Division 18.

The new ComDiv 18 skipper will be RADM. Frederick L. Ashworth, reporting from the Office of the CNO.

Day by day the Polaris missile gets nearer to its first submarine test firing... nearer the day when, operational, it will become one of our nation's most formidable deterrents to aggression. For with submarines serving as mobile missile launching pads, any target on earth is within deadly striking range if retaliation becomes necessary.

The Polaris-launching submarines are splendidly fitted out not only to aim and fire and accurately guide the missile, but also to defend themselves. Advanced Sperry submarine equipment contributes to both these functions. For precise navigation there is SINS (Ship's Inertial Navigation System), automatic steering and stabilization, depth detectors, gyro-compasses, diving and maneuvering controls, instrumentation, and computers... and the NAVDAC computer which correlates all navigation data. For anti-submarine warfare the subs have Sperry torpedo fire control systems, sonar sub detection equipment, the attack periscope itself. At two special laboratories both aspects of the Polaris program are being refined and integrated: one of which simulates submarine navigation, the other the environments of the sea.

Sperry's role in the Polaris program is typical of the Company today, achieving through specialized divisions an integrated capability that is contributing to every major arena of our environment. General offices: Great Neck, N. Y.

Permanent AF Lt. Col. List Nears Release

The Air Force has chosen 874 line and 75 other-than-line officers for permanent promotion to lieutenant colonel. Names are expected to be released by 1 July.

The board considered 1,062 line officers, 115 of them in a once-deferred status. There were 188 officers passed over this time among the line officers, of whom 66 were deferred for the second time. All officers deferred twice are subject to retirement upon reaching 20 years active military service.

The board's record reveals that of the 1,062 line officers considered for permanent lieutenant colonel, 52 (4.8%) held the grade of temporary colonel, 434 (40.7%) were temporary lieutenant colonels, and 576 (54%) were majors whose selection would involve an insignia change.

Other board statistics show the age spread of line officers as follows: 45-53 bracket, 75 (7%); 40-44, 975 (91.6%); 38-39, 14 (1.3%).

Additional information compiled by the board shows that of the 1,062 officers considered for promotion, there were 721 pilots (67.7%), 172 other rated officers (16.1%) and 171 non-rated officers (16%).

NAVY COMPLETES LAUNCH COMPLEX FOR AF

THE Navy reports completion of the first major missile and satellite launching complex constructed at the Naval Missile Facility, Point Arguello, Calif. It consists of two Atlas pads complete with gantry, block house and associated facilities built by the Bureau of Yards and Docks for the Air Force's Samos and Midas satellite programs.

Construction on the $6 million Samos-Midas launch complex was started in January 1959 by Wells-Benz, Inc., prime contractor on the project under supervision of the Bureau of Yards and Docks Assistant Resident Officer-in-Charge of Construction at Point Arguello, Cdr. A. T. Towle, CEC, USN.

A Welcomed Gift For The Army's Birthday

It so happens that the Army Birthday on 14 June comes at a time when Congress is completing work on the fiscal '61 budget. This budget will provide millions of dollars in increased funds for Army modernization, compared with the original budget requests submitted to Capitol Hill by the Administration in January. The Army also has played a prominent role in winning Congressional approval for a multi-million dollar airlift modernization program.

Quietly, and with the tactical skill of a man who knows his way about on the political battlefield, Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker, a former Governor of Michigan, has led the Army's successful drive to win increased support from Congress. Flanked by General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Chief of Staff, on whom he has called to present professional military assessments, Secretary Brucker has stuck by his guns in fighting for Army needs.

On the manpower front, he has held consistently that the Army, to fulfill its global missions, needs more soldiers. In the matter of Reserve Forces strength, time and again he has demonstrated courage to state his conviction that Congress should continue the National Guard and Army Reserve at a total strength of 70,000 above that recommended by the Administration.

Secretary Brucker has not sought involvement in any blunderbuss, headline-making attacks on decisions of his superiors. He has stated repeatedly that he and the Army will support their implementation with complete dedication. He has also stated repeatedly, in answer to questions from legislators, what his views are on specific issues, such as modernization and manpower.

Members of the House and Senate have demonstrated their appreciation for the Secretary's courage and candor. They have done this by voting increased recognition for the Army. This increased stature on Capitol Hill is a birthday present which Secretary Brucker and General Lemnitzer share this June with Army members throughout the world.

Exchange Service Builds Armed Forces Morale

Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, who retires 30 June after 31 years service, leaves a distinguished record of accomplishment in his two year tour as Chief of the Army-Air Force Exchange Service (see Page 1). He turns over to his Deputy and successor, Brig. Gen. Ray Laux, USA, a global operation that last year accounted for $895 million in sales.

The story of the Exchange Service's importance to military morale is not told in the size of its mounting sales. More important is the fact that under General Park's leadership, Army and Air Force exchanges today are providing better service to their patrons, members of the Service family, and are providing substantial dividends—$61.7 million last year—for important morale building activities.

On Capitol Hill and throughout the retailing industry, General Parks and his associates have succeeded in winning new votes of confidence for the manner in which the Exchange Service performs its mission. Hopefully, it may be possible at a later time to build on this confidence and to obtain approval of a liberalized sales list for PX's in the United States.

In strengthening the Exchange Service, General Parks has helped strengthen the morale and combat effectiveness of our Armed Forces.

Military And Civilian Leaders Collaborate

CARLISLE BARRACKS, PA.

The National Strategy Seminar held at the Army War College here this week performed a most important function in providing an exchange of views and ideas on nationally significant problems between the 200 students nearing the end of their course at the College and the 100 selected civilian and military leaders invited to participate.

Members of the Seminar were helped in their task by presentations from four top Government speakers. Allen W. Dulles, Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, opened the four-day meeting with an up-to-the-minute report on the "world situation." On Wednesday, Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Muller spoke on "Psychological, Political and Economic Aspects of Military Strategy." The final two days, the Seminar heard General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Army Chief of Staff, on "Military Aspects of National Strategy," and the U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations Henry Cabot Lodge give "Some Observations on the Soviet Union and its Foreign Policy."

Maj. Gen. William P. Ennis, jr., Commandant of the College, prepared the members with an opening statement, and concluded with a summing up. Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker spoke at a dinner given Wednesday by General Ennis.

The guests, including men from a wide variety of businesses, industries and professions were assigned as members of the 14 student committees which had been working throughout the year toward a national strategy program. In this way the students had the advantage of a wide scope of outside comment and views of the work they had been doing while the visitors gained a better understanding of some of the national security requirements facing the nation and what is being done to develop the leaders to deal with them.

Similar seminars are held at the Naval War College, Newport, R. I. and the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Colo. All are part of the effort of the Armed Forces to better fit themselves for the vital tasks ahead and to create among the citizenry a sound understanding of the problems in today's turbulent world.

Manpower Requirements

■ I deeply appreciate your very fine editorial (28 May) in support of the position I have taken regarding the changes that must be made in existing law to meet the critical manpower requirements of the cold war. I am grateful to you for your support.

New Pay Study

■ Congratulations on your editorial (4 June) which calls upon the Pentagon to make preparations for a new pay study.

I wonder how much influence you are going to have on this problem, in view of the historic delays in pay raise action for those in uniform. It's going to take a big push to get this one started, and all of us in the Services are pleased that you are trying to get the ball rolling.

MAJOR, USMC

First Things First

■ It's all well and good for you to emphasize the need for a new look at Service pay and allowances, but how about first things first. I mean that there are thousands of retired persons who are still waiting for the 1958 pay benefits.

One thing is certain. We retired people are not going to wait next time to make our protests to Congress, if a pay bill is passed which doesn't give us fair treatment.

COLONEL, USA-RET.

Promotion Prospects

■ The way it looks to me, there will be no promotion relief for the Air Force until fiscal year 1962 at the earliest. You have published numerous articles pointing to the need for amendments in the Officer Grade Limitation Act, and there was talk of action next year.

But with this new officer personnel study (THE JOURNAL 4 June), it appears obvious that the next budget, which much reach Congress in January, is not going to provide for any revised grade structure.

Our only hope would seem to be for the Armed Services Committees to take the bull by the horns and demand testimony on this problem early next year. Then, maybe something would get done quickly.

As it stands now, there are hundreds of us in the Air Force who will continue to trail our contemporaries in the other Services.

Family Housing Appropriations Are Doomed; Cottonseed Bread Studied; USMA Memorial Set

10 Years Ago—Federal appropriations for construction of much-needed family housing for Armed Forces personnel in the United States was doomed this week. A Congressional Conference Committee agreed that family quarters in the Zone of the Interior should be built exclusively with funds provided by the Wherry Act. . . . The Wherry Act gives authority for Federal mortgage guarantees to private builders who construct housing units for military personnel at or adjacent to Armed Forces installations.

50 Years Ago—The Commissary General has written to the officer in charge of the School for Bakers and Cooks at Ft. Riley, Kans., as to the results of any experiments in making bread out of cottonseed flour. Members of the Texas Cottonseed Crushers' Association are organizing a company, it is said, to make flour, breakfast foods and other products from cottonseed.

96 Years Ago—We are requested to announce that the ceremony of dedicating the site for the Battle Monument, to be erected to the memory of the officers and soldiers of the Regular Army who have fallen in this war, will take place on Wednesday next, June 15, commencing at eleven o'clock a.m. The exercises (at West Point) will consist of religious services, appropriate music by the Academy band, and an oration by Major General George B. McClellan.

The Senate Hears Rep. Hébert's Story; But Some Facts Are Missing

REPRESENTATIVE F. Edward Hébert (D-La.) is "trying to protect the military from the finger of suspicion."

This is what he told the Senate Armed Services Committee 2 June when he tried to persuade the Senators to over-rule the House and vote criminal penalties for retired officers who take defense industry sales jobs and the contractors who employ them.

Congressman Hébert created the impression that the institution of criminal penalties for defense contractors is his greatest concern. He said if a man is to be penalized for taking a bribe, a penalty also should be imposed on the bribe-giver. He indicated that he was deeply disappointed because the House had "no opportunity" to vote on this important question.

Congressman Hébert failed to point out to the Senators that neither his original bill nor the report of his own Investigations Subcommittee proposed such a penalty for contractors. The subject was not raised during consideration of the Hébert measure by the full House Armed Services Committee.

It was only after the full Committee had rewritten the Hébert bill and it had been sent to the floor by a vote of 34-1 that Congressman Hébert developed the theme that criminal penalties should be enforced against both the retired officer and the contractor.

Other views expounded by Congressman Hébert during his Senate Armed Services Committee appearance, also merit analysis. Here are some of the statements made by the Congressman, (in bold face type) and some of the facts which were not brought out in the Senate hearing:

No Opposition?

Senator Strom Thurmond (D-SC) asked what arguments were advanced by Congressman Hébert's opponents. The Congressman replied, "There were none. Mr. Vinson (Chairman Carl Vinson, (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee) walked in and said, 'WHOOOM! This is out.'"

At the start of full Armed Services Committee hearings on the Hébert bill, Chairman Vinson strongly supported the measure. On the opening day of the hearings, however, the Civil Service Commission blasted the bill and recommended "comprehensive revisions," reciting a long list of "specific difficulties" which the Commission said it saw in enactment of the measure.

Prohibitions included in the bill, affecting all Federal employees and officials, including members of Congress, were so tight, the Commission said, that they would prohibit a Government employee from even "preparing an income tax report for a member of his family." The Commission urged the full Committee not to act on the measure "until comprehensive revisions can be considered."

The Justice Department also hit some of the language in the bill as "too broad." Deputy Attorney General Lawrence E. Walsh said it could be interpreted "so as to forbid former officers and Defense Department employees from taking any position with a company that deals with the Armed Forces or that deals with another company that in turn deals with the Armed Forces, even though the former officers or employees themselves never come into contact with Government personnel."

The Defense Department agreed with the "general objectives" of the bill, but also said the language was "too broad." Members of the Committee also attacked the measure, as did the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Despite the criticism, however, Chairman Vinson, noting that he had read and studied the bill carefully, said: "I think this bill is necessary and I think the way the committee (the Hébert Subcommittee) approached it is on sound ground. And I think every member of the committee can understand it." He ordered that the bill be read, section by section.

As the reading proceeded, members of the Committee began to raise objections to the language and the objectives of some of the sections. Congressman Hébert stated that the language of the bill, as drafted by his subcommittee, was "merely a vehicle for us to discuss it here and refine the language and refine the bill on what we want to do."

The wrangling continued, however, with members heatedly rejecting certain features of the bill, offering amendments and opposing the overall philosophy of the measure on the basis that no "influence peddling" had been uncovered.

Finally, Chairman Vinson banged the gavel and delivered a little lecture to the Committee. He said: "Every member of the Committee knows that this should be dealt with by statute. And the House knows it." He recalled that an appropriations rider had barely missed passage in the previous session, "and it would have passed, had it not been stated that this Committee was going to deal with that subject matter. And if we don't deal with it, then when the appropriation bill comes up this year, it will be offered again, and the House is not going to sit quietly by and let big contracts be let in the Department of Defense on account of influence or even if the House thinks there is influence."

He told the members, "Now, you better deal with it now, and you better deal with it in an intelligent manner." There was a chorus of "Mr. Chairman" from members who wished to speak. Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D-SC) was recognized. He wanted to know if this meant that Mr. Vinson subscribed to statements that retired officers had been involved in influence peddling. He asked, "Have those things been proved by those (the Hébert) hearings?" Chairman Vinson said the Committee "is not warranted at any time in making any recommendation unless there are some facts to justify and warrant it." When the members of the Hébert Subcommittee reported the bill, he said, "I am satisfied that they had sufficient facts to deal with this subject matter and every phase of it."

The hearings continued on their stormy course, however, with members continuing to object to various features of the bill, particularly the new criminal provisions. Finally, on the third day of the hearings, when objections again were raised to the criminal provisions, Chairman Vinson advised that he would offer a motion to "strike all those sections out." This, he subsequently did, and the motion carried by a vote of 20-4. Other sections of the bill, meanwhile, had been amended by votes of 23-2 and 20-2. The revamped measure was approved by the Committee nine days later by a vote of 34-1.

Administration Support?

During the Senate Armed Services Committee hearings, Congressman Hébert said his proposal to strengthen the criminal penalties had the backing of the Administration.

When the Congressman made a similar claim during the House floor debate, Republican Whip Leslie Arends (Ill), ranking minority member of the House Armed Services Committee, threw cold water on the statement. He told Congressman Hébert he understood "they voiced no opposition to your position, neither did they endorse it." Congressman Arends normally can be counted on to give the White House position whenever the Administration wants to demonstrate its backing for legislation before the House.

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex) also downgraded Congressman Hébert's statement with the charge that the so-called "Administration" position was the position of a White House staffer and not that of the President, himself.

President Concerned?

Congressman Hébert also told the Senate Committee that the President is concerned about "influence peddling" by retired officers, as evidenced by his charges that a "munitions lobby" is operating in the Nation's Capitol.

This statement, made repeatedly by the Congressman during his Subcommittee investigation, was compared with the original transcript of the President's press conference statement in THE JOURNAL issue of 8 August. The "munitions lobby" question was raised during a White House news conference by Mrs. Ruth Montgomery of the Hearst Newspapers. Another reporter had inquired about the Bomarc-Nike Hercules quarrel then raging in the Congress.

The President explained that the Pentagon was re-studying the entire air defense set-up. Mrs. Montgomery then asked: "Mr. President, following up on that same question, several Senators said that lately you have spoken out rather sharply to them about what you have termed the munitions lobby, which you feel has been bringing some pressure on some of the Congressmen to try to change your defense program and plan. Could you comment on that?"

The President replied: "Well, I don't know who has a right to carry outside the White House any remarks I have been making, and to make those remarks public property. That is supposed to be a little bit of a private place over there, although maybe not always. I don't think I have used that word, Miss Montgomery, in public. I do say this: I may have, but I am not saying I didn't, but I don't believe I have. I do say this: But there is obviously political and financial considerations getting into this argument, rather than merely military ones, and that is produced when people have to advertise very strongly about a particular thing companies do—obviously something besides the strict military needs of the country are becoming influenced decisions."

There was no hint of "influence peddling" by retired military officers in either the question or the answer, nor has the President since expressed himself on the subject. Following the appearance of this story in THE JOURNAL, the Hébert Subcommittee, in its own report, downgraded the charge that the President is concerned about such "influence peddling."

Here is what the Subcommittee said in the report: "Later, the President of the United States expressed concern over rivalry between two defense contractors

CAPITOL JOURNAL:

Chairman Vinson "Restores" Committee Control, Senator Smith Still Sharp

MANY fascinating gimmicks have been used by both sides in the fight over the Hébert Bill and the kind of controls to be imposed upon retired military officers who take sales jobs with defense industries. One of these was the House parliamentary decision which ruled "out of order" Congressman F. Edward Hébert's attempt to amend the bill on the House floor by adding criminal penalties. Such penalties come under Title 18 of the U.S. Code. Since the Committee-approved bill made no mention of Title 18, the ruling against Congressman Hébert was based on the fact that the amendment was not "germaine" to the subject matter of the bill.

There also was some talk about whether or not the Committee on Armed Services had "jurisdiction" over Title 18 matters. Later, Congressman Hébert (THE JOURNAL, 30 April) took advantage of this ruling to kill temporarily a Pentagon proposal to ease the financial burden of Service members who win fellowships, scholarships and similar awards. Congressman Hébert took over the Chair during hearings on the Scholarship bill and when he learned that it involved Title 18, he immediately ruled that the Committee had no jurisdiction.

There the matter rested until Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee appeared before a House Judiciary Subcommittee to oppose a new Hébert bill imposing the criminal penalties for which Congressman Hébert failed to win backing within his own Committee. Chairman Vinson noted that Congressman Hébert has quoted him as saying that the Armed Services Committee has "no jurisdiction over the criminal code," although he, "at no time" has ever made such a statement. "The Committee on Armed Services most certainly has jurisdiction over the applicability of the criminal code" insofar as it pertains to active or retired members of the Armed Forces, civilian employees of the Defense Department, and Defense Department contractors, Chairman Vinson declared. He cited a number of cases where other Committees have reported bills dealing with Title 18, and said the Judiciary Committee has no "exclusive jurisdiction" in this area. In fact, if it is a matter involving the Department of Defense, the Armed Services Committee "has jurisdiction," Chairman Vinson said. His action will clear up any doubts about the scholarship bill and could still permit the Committee to act on the measure during the present Congress.

In seeking Senate action on the earlier, House-approved Hébert Bill, Chairman Vinson noted that among those "who make light of the court-martial procedure" are some "who insisted upon the establishment of a civilian Court of Military Ap-

MEMO--

A NEW "CODE OF ETHICAL CONDUCT" for active and retired officers will be promulgated by the Pentagon. The directive, nearing final review by Secretary Gates, will furnish guidance for active duty officers who must determine whether or not it is ethical to accept entertainment from business firms handling defense contracts. The Code also will establish firmer ground rules for retired officers who accept employment with defense contractors.

NEED FOR SUCH A CODE was pointed up by the Hébert House Armed Services Investigations Subcommittee, which "urgently requested" such action early this year. The Pentagon says it had the matter under study prior to that time. The proposed directive subsequently was "revised and reviewed."

LACK OF LEADERSHIP IN MILITARY MANPOWER matters was manifested again this week when Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles C. Finucane told the Senate Armed Services Committee (see Page 1) that it will be "fine" with the Pentagon if Congress wants to impose either court-martial or criminal penalties on retired officers who take sales jobs with defense industries. The Secretary told Congress earlier in the session that the Pentagon would be "perfectly agreeable" if the legislators accept President Eisenhower's recommended recomputation plan for retired pay.

THE SERVICES WILL WONDER WHY SECRETARY GATES has not insisted that his manpower chief take a firm position in Capitol Hill testimony. Congressional leaders understandably become confused by spineless Pentagon statements which leave them in doubt as to the desired objectives of the White House and Defense Department.

SECRETARY FINUCANE did nothing to help the cause of Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee, who is fighting to get a court-martial law on the statute books. The effort is being made to prevent Congress from enacting other, more damaging restrictions.

LOST FROM SIGHT during maneuvering over the retired officer employment bill was the determination with which Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee fought for the views of Representative F. Edward Hébert (see Page 13) until it became clear that other members of the full Committee could not reach accord on the controversial measure. It was not until the Committee had almost reached an impasse on the bill that Chairman Vinson took the dramatic step of expunging the criminal penalties which were in hot dispute.

THE ARMY'S NEW DENTAL CHIEF, Col. Joseph L. Bernier, who will be promoted to major general 1 August, will find it no problem to write papers in his new post. He is the author of more than 80 publications, mainly in the field of oral pathology in which he is a world-renowned authority. Unusual for a Service officer, he is a Professor at Georgetown University in Washington, D. C., and a Visiting Professor at the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia.

THE DIRECTOR OF OFFICE PROMOTIONS in the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Capt. Lloyd H. McAlpine, on 30 June will assume duties as the Senior Naval Officer at MATS Headquarters, Scott AFB, Ill. He will succeed Capt. Albert H. Wilson, who retires. About 4000 Navy men are assigned to MATS missions, primarily in Naval Air Transport Wings at McGuire AFB, N. J., and Moffett NAS, Calif.

EUGENE M. MCLEMORE, JR., son of SFC and Mrs. McLemore of 2 Holiday Circle, Columbia, S. C., enters West Point next month. He chose the Army after being accepted for all four Service Academies.

THE "TWIN ADMIRAL" STAR PROBLEM will be on the agenda for study by the Pentagon's new committee on personnel legislation. This concerns the practice of giving all Navy captains promoted to rear admiral two-stars, while their counterparts in the other Services, who go from colonel to brigadier general, wear only one star. As Army CofS, President Eisenhower was concerned with this prestige advantage for Navy officers. He still is.

NAVY REAR ADMIRALS move automatically from lower-half (brigadier general) to upper half (major general). In the other Services, including the Marine Corps, one-star officers must face another selection round to reach two-star status.

CATEGORY II TESTING has been completed at Eglin AFB, Fla., on the Air Force's new Mach 2 fighter-bomber, the Republic F-105B. Lt. Col. Robert R. Scott led the 335th Tactical Fighter Squadron in completing the test missions, supervised by Col. H. A. Paxton, jr., Assistant Deputy CofS for Staff Test at the Air Proving Ground Center. In the Category II tests, the aircraft, its subsystems and components are evaluated under closely simulated tactical conditions. The 335th will conduct similar tests on the advanced model, the F-105D.

A CONFLICT OF ARMY POLICIES is facilitating the separation of personnel placed on the temporary disability retired list. Army Medical Service policy is to restore men on the TDRL to duty. But when the time comes for them to be restored to active duty, it is the policy of the Army Adjutant General's Office to inform them that there are no active-duty billets available, and then discharge them from the Service with separation pay. Many separated this way are within a few years of retirement. Navy and Air Force officials say that their Services do not follow the Army policy with respect to TDRL personnel.

THE NEW USMA SUPERINTENDENT, Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who has been in command of the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N. C., will go to West Point with an honorary degree of Doctor of Military Science. It was awarded 4 June at The Citadel by General Mark W. Clark, USA-Ret., President. Also present for the ceremonies, at which General Westmoreland delivered the commencement address, was Brig. Gen. George R. E. Shell, who retires from the Marines this month to become V.M.I. Superintendent at Lexington, Va. Col. A. G. D. Wiles, head of The Citadel's English Department, received an honorary Doctor of Literature degree, prior to his departure for the Presidency of Newberry College.

FURTHER ACTION IS ANTICIPATED in the Senate to increase Army Modernization funds. This was forecast by Senator Dennis Chavez (D-NM), Chairman of the Military Appropriations Subcommittee, which this week (see Page 36) recommended a $760 million total increase in military spending above the House bill, and $1 billion more than proposed by the Administration. There was no question that the recent blasts of Premier Khrushchev against the United States figured in the Senate Committee action.

THE SENATE COMMITTEE proposed a $280 limit on allowances of Service family education overseas. The present ceiling is $265. The Administration asked for $285. The House approved $270.

DR. FRANK B. BERRY, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical), will supervise the work of a team of nutrition experts who next week begin a 74-day survey in Colombia. An Army MSC officer, Maj. Leo V. Crowley, Department of Surgical Metabolism and Physiology at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, is a member of the team. The Colombian project was arranged by the Interdepartmental Committee on Nutrition for National Defense. Dr. Berry heads ICNND.

EVERY PERSON IN THE ARMED FORCES will salute the decisive action taken by Secretary of the Army Brucker (see Page 6) in directing the promotion to colonel of a critically ill officer who had been on the recommended list for months. There was the danger that the officer might die before his scheduled advancement could be effected later this month. When he learned the facts of the case, Secretary Brucker on Saturday afternoon 4 June ordered that the officer and those ahead of him on the promotion list be advanced as soon as possible. The official promotion order was promulgated quickly.

AN ARMY NUCLEAR MEDICINE authority, Maj. Gen. James P. Cooney, former Deputy Surgeon General and now U. S. Army Europe Surgeon, will retire in August. He will be succeeded by Brig. Gen. Joseph H. McNinch, Commander of the Army Medical Service R&D Command. New R&D Chief will be Brig. Gen. James H. Forsee, Chief of Professional Services at Walter Reed GH, Washington, D. C.

SLATED FOR DUTY as General Forsee's successor is Brig. Gen. Clinton S. Lyter, CG at William Beaumont Army Hospital, El Paso, Tex. Col. James B. Stapleton, Chief of Personnel and Training Division under Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, Surgeon General, will get the William Beaumont command. Col. Howard W. Doan, First Army Surgeon, Governors Island, N. Y., replaces Colonel Doan. Colonel Doan's successor will be Col. James Q. Simmons, Deputy First Army Surgeon.

THE ARMY'S RANGER CHIEF, Col. John T. Corley, is under orders to Headquarters Allied Land Forces in Copenhagen as Deputy CofS. He has been Director of the Ranger Department at the Ft. Benning, Ga., Infantry Center, where he will be succeeded by Col. Bernard G. Teeters.

THE ARMY-AF EXCHANGE SERVICE sees no possibility, for several years at least, of gaining Congressional approval for an expanded list of items for sale in PX's in the ZI. This will be disappointing to many Service families. Exchange Service relations with the Nation's major retailing organizations are the best they have been in years, as evidenced by the lack of sustained efforts on Capitol Hill this year to curtail presently authorized PX sales lists.

RIISING WAGE SCALES for foreign citizens employed in PX's overseas are a cause for some concern. It is possible that wage rates being worked out with foreign officials could see a $2 million annual increase in PX operating costs.

THE CASE OF COMMANDER RAWLINS of the Navy, who has been seeking review of his WWII passovers for selection to captain, may take a definitive turn, at last, as a result of the intervention of Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee (see Page 7). A group of senior officers, including Admiral Robert B. Carney, USN-Ret., former CNO, have contended that Commander Rawlins suffered an injustice because the selection panels lacked full records. The matter has been taken up on numerous occasions during the past decade by the House and Senate Armed Services Committees. On three occasions, the Senate has passed legislation in the Commander's behalf.

IT'S NOT OFTEN that Chairman Vinson is required to wait for weeks to receive a reply from the Pentagon on a matter in which he expresses interest. But that is exactly what has happened in the case of Commander Rawlins. It's a good bet that, with the facts of the delayed response brought to light, Chairman Vinson soon will have his reply.

VICE PRESIDENT NIXON is expected to participate in the annual Secretaries Conference at Quantico, Va., 16-18 June. It would provide him a strategic opportunity for a statement of his views on the defense program. More than 150 top-echelon civilian and military leaders will confer in closed-door sessions, with budget matters certain for a prominent spot on the agenda.

another hunter... your children break a neighbor's picture window... your wife scalds a guest with hot coffee... your dog bites the mailman...
the milkman breaks a leg on your back porch.
These accidents, and many more, can result in costly judgments that may run into the thousands.

Now for the first time, USAA, serving the Armed Forces officer with low cost automobile insurance since 1922, makes available

THE USAA COMPREHENSIVE PERSONAL LIABILITY POLICY that might happen at or away from your home. Accidents that might injure another person or through negligence cause damage to the property of others.

For as little as $10 a year you can have the new CPL policy giving you $10,000 liability coverage and meeting medical payments up to $250. For less than three cents a day additional cost liability coverage of $50,000 can be provided and medical payments coverage increased to $1,000. Higher limits are also available at nominal cost as are many additional coverages.

USAA employs no agents. It is a non-profit insurance association under the direction of active and retired officers of the Armed Services. All selling is by mail and the resulting savings are passed on to policyholders.
USAA affiliated claims services are located in all areas where the CPL policy is offered.

Senate Asks Pentagon Views On Officer Employment

From first page—

Reservists subject to the court-martial provisions of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Congressman Hébert urged the Senate Committee to adopt the criminal penalties of another measure which he has sponsored and which is under consideration by the House Judiciary Committee. He also said he would be willing to see the proposal broadened to include retired Reservists and to contain a definition of "sales."

DoD "Agreeable"

Both of the latter changes were recommended to the Committee by Secretary Finucane. He said the Defense Department would be willing to accept either the court-martial plan recommended by Chairman Vinson and approved by the House, or the Hébert criminal-penalty plan. Whichever method Congress elects will be agreeable with the Pentagon, he said.

At the conclusion of the hearings, Chairman Russell asked Secretary Finucane to have Pentagon General Counsel J. Vincent Burke, Jr., study the changes recommended by both Chairman Vinson and Congressman Hébert, as well as the entire transcript of the Senate hearings, and give the Senate Committee his views.

The Senate Chairman observed, as he ended the hearings, that the problem is one which "on the surface cries out for immediate remedy, but when you get into it, it has thousands of facets." He left the impression that there is no easy solution.

Chairman Vinson, of the House Committee, as the lead-off witness, urged the Senators not to take the "drastic step" of adopting criminal penalties to be imposed against retired officers who take defense industry sales jobs, until the suggested House solution "has been given an opportunity to prove or disprove itself."

Asked about the Defense Department proposal to include retired Reservists under the penalty provisions of the bill, Chairman Vinson said "there appears to be no reason why a Reserve officer receiving retired pay should not be subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice" in the same manner as a Regular retired officer. He offered the Senate Committee a suggested amendment to accomplish this purpose.

In response to questions by Chairman Russell, Chairman Vinson said he would be agreeable to an amendment to the bill which would spell out the definition of "selling," as well as an amendment to restrict the application of the bill only to officers in the rank of colonel or above. He offered the Committee a suggested definition of "selling" which could be included in the bill.

Congressman Hébert attacked the court-martial provisions of the House-approved bill as ineffective and urged the Senators to impose criminal penalties on retired officers who take defense industry sales jobs as well as the contractor who employs them.

"Old Class Reunion"

He repeated a charge which he had made during the House floor debate that a court-martial for a general officer would be "like an old class reunion."

Congressman Hébert said he could recall no recent case in which a general officer had been tried by court-martial. "I don't believe there has been one since Billy Mitchell," he said.

He told the Committee his proposed criminal sanctions are "authorized by the Administration."

In answer to a statement by Chairman Vinson that no evidence of "influence peddling" had been uncovered, Congressman Hébert said while it is true that his Subcommittee "did not pinpoint a single violation, we could have gone beyond the scope of the inquiry and indicted some people." He said this was not the desire of his Subcommittee, however.

Chairman Russell, observing that "some of the finest skills in the country are possessed by members of the Armed Forces," asked if Congressman Hébert objected to retired officers being employed in a production capacity in defense industries.

The Congressman replied that it is not the intent of his proposal "to deprive the Nation of these skills." What he is trying to do, he said, is to "protect the military from the finger of suspicion."

Dual Penalty Asked

Although there is widespread feeling that "influence peddling" is going on "in a broad sense," Congressman Hébert said, "I do not agree. I think it is limited." However, if retired officers are to be penalized for taking sales jobs with defense contractors, he said, the same penalties should be extended to the contractors themselves.

Those who oppose the criminal penalties, Congressman Hébert said, are those "who want to sell something." He charged that concern about the problem "reaches into the White House, itself," and that the President first directed attention to the problem with his statement about a "munitions lobby."

Senator Strom Thurmond (D-SC) asked Congressman Hébert: "What were the arguments advanced by your opponents?" The Congressman said there were "none."

Secretary Finucane said the Pentagon is in "general agreement" with the purpose of the House-passed bill, but thinks there should be uniformity of treatment for retired Regulars and retired Reservists. He said the Defense Department has "no objection" to the provisions of the Hébert measure, now before the House Judiciary group, "which would make long-time Reservists subject to certain criminal penalties."

Problem For "Primes"

The Pentagon manpower chief said the Department "is particularly concerned with and objects to" the provisions of the bill which require Defense contractors to furnish a listing of retired officers in their employ each time they receive a contract, unless such information already is on file. He said the burden on prime contractors to obtain similar information from their subcontractors also would be heavy. He cited the case of one Defense contractor who utilized 3300 subcontractors on a single missile program.

"This requirement," Secretary Finucane said, "could place an appreciable administrative burden and indeed financial risk on defense contractors and would undoubtedly result in a reluctance or refusal on their part to consider the employment of any retired officer."

Enactment of the provision, he said, "would unduly prejudice the employment opportunities afforded retired officers and the defense effort would stand to lose valuable skills which these men have developed over their years of honorable service with the Armed Forces."

Mr. Finucane said the Pentagon recognizes the validity and desirability of the House-approved "enrollment" procedures and "highly approves" of any requirement which Congress demands of either the retired officer, the Department of Defense, or both, but "strongly recommends" that enrollment responsibilities not be "extended to the private contractor."

The language which applies to active duty officers also is "much too broad," Secretary Finucane said, and should be modified so as not to bar young officers from augmenting their income in off-duty employment simply because the employer "incidentally" happens to sell "anything" to the Defense Department.

Colonel And Above

Secretary Finucane also noted that the "vast number" of retired officers "are relatively young and without departmental influence." He said it would be "manifestly unfair" to preclude them from large areas of employment.

Both Chairman Vinson and Congressman Hébert, as well as members of the Senate Committee, indicated that they would be willing to limit application of the restrictions to officers in the grade of colonel or above.

Secretary Finucane and Chairman Vinson proposed almost identical definitions of "selling" to be included in the bill.

Selling, under their definition, would mean (1) signing a bid, proposal or contract; (2) negotiating a contract; or (3) contacting an officer or employee of the Defense Department who is vested with authority to make or negotiate a contract for the purpose of (a) obtaining or negotiating contracts; (b) negotiating or discussing changes in specifications, price, cost allowances, or other terms of a contract; or (c) settling disputes concerning performance of a contract.

Chairman Russell asked Secretary Finucane if the Defense Department General Counsel had looked into the Constitutionality of court-martialing a retired Reserve officer.

Secretary Finucane said such officers are not now subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice, and the Defense Department's position is that the criminal penalties of the Hébert bill would take care of the problem.

Pentagon Defers To Congress

Asked if this means that he favors the philosophy of the new Hébert bill, Secretary Finucane said the Defense Department "will leave to Congress" the methods to be employed.

Chairman Russell said it is his "off the cuff opinion that Retired Reservists couldn't be made subject to court-martial."

Senator Francis Case (R-SC) said it appears that if criminal penalties are adopted for Reservists, they also would have to be adopted for Regulars. "I think we are going to be forced," he said, "to go back to that bill (the new Hébert bill), myself."

Secretary Finucane said if the Congress wants to court-martial the officers, "that is fine," and if Congress wants to impose criminal penalties that, too, "is fine."

Job Problem Told

Retired officers, Secretary Finucane said, are having "great difficulty" finding employment since the Hébert hearings first were instituted. It is "our hope," he said, "that we will put as little burden on them as possible to prevent wrong-doing."

Senator Russell asked the Defense Department to re-study the various proposals and furnish a new report to the Committee, and then closed the hearings subject to further "call of the Chair."

with half the airplanes" if MATS had modern equipment. Many of the MATS aircraft required from 30 to 48 hours to traverse the 4,500-mile distance from the U.S. to Chile. The planes used were C-124 Globemasters and C-118 transports.

The first C-118 passenger flight from the U.S. took over 35 hours to fly from Andrews AFB, Md., to Santiago, with no time lost for the normal 12-hour crew rest. Many others were forced to take a 12-hour crew rest in Lima, Peru, before they could fly on to Santiago.

All aircraft flew the mission with augmented crews, and with crew duty time extended to 37 hours before a crew rest was mandatory.

With modern aircraft, only one refueling stop would have been needed on the way to Chile, instead of the two refuelings in Panama and Peru. Each of the refuelings added at least an hour's ground time to the flight.

The Senate Appropriations Committee this week must vote on a special $250 million appropriation authorized by the House of Representatives for MATS modernization.

For the Army the mercy mission pointed up the fact that not only STRAC troops but many other units are ready for emergency action. It was to be expected that the 15th Field Hospital at Ft. Bragg, N. C., could move out immediately because of its STRAC readiness.

Moving out equally fast, however, was the non-STRAC 17th Field Hospital at Ft. Belvoir, Va., and other units from Ft. Belvoir and Ft. Meade, Md.

The Army proved its point—it can go wherever and whenever desired, provided the airlift is available.

Unlike the recent mass airlift exercise BIG SLAM/PUERTO PINE, the Operation "Amigos" here was arranged completely on the spur of the moment, and thus provided a more realistic picture of both MATS and Army readiness.

A third major lesson to be learned was for MATS, which found its aircraft stacking up and being delayed on the ground at all points along the mercy mission route.

The troops and transport aircraft moved out so fast from the ZI that they were arriving en masse in Peru and Chile before aircraft control teams had arrived.

The lack of adequate ground control of aircraft was felt most in Santiago and at Puerto Montt, where long delays were experienced in getting on or off the ground.

At Puerto Montt, especially, cargo and passenger transports were parked and unloading at both ends of the relatively short, single runway, causing two to three hour delays for many aircraft waiting to land. In some cases the stacked aircraft were forced to approaches with as little as five to 10 feet clearance over parked aircraft in order to set down on the field.

In future operations, General Fisher told THE JOURNAL, it will be mandatory that aircraft control teams be deployed in advance of the transport aircraft in order to avoid the stacking and other delays experienced during the Chilean mercy mission.

Another lesson to be learned is one for Congress, which has consistently refused funds to repair Howard AFB in the Panama Canal Zone on the grounds that nearby Albrook AFB is adequate to meet all needs.

The last time such funds were refused was only last month, when Howard funds were cut by the House Appropriations Committee.

The fact is that Albrook is not capable of handling a large cargo airlift safely, due to mountains which block its major approaches.

Without the civilian Tocumen Airport near Panama City, General Fisher told THE JOURNAL, efficient operation of the huge mercy lift would have been impossible.

A final evaluation of the "Operation Amigos" must await completion of the mercy mission here and submission of detailed reports to the Defense Department and Congress.

PRACTICAL ANSWER TO SMALL WAR CONTROL

The Tactical Air Command (TAC) is the practical air arm of the U. S. Air Force.

TAC's all-weather mission capabilities start from the ground up. So do the capabilities of the aircraft it flies: Republic's F-105 Thunderchief. >> TAC teams up with our Army's tactical ground forces to assure terrain control. TAC helps assure this by giving close support to these ground forces . . . by becoming an umbrella which helps deter aggressor efforts, pinpoint aggressor targets, prevent aggressor action. TAC and the F-105, in addition to versatility, offer extremely important economy factors: economy of force, personnel and the defense dollar: one aircraft capable of multi-purpose performance missions.

Pay Bill Fate Hangs On Study

til he sees the staff report and has gone into the matter thoroughly. Meanwhile, he said, the Committee has more than enough hearings on other matters to keep it busy.

Asked about reports that he will give the pay bill a right-of-way and postpone any full-scale investigation of the overall military retirement system until next year, Senator Stennis reiterated that he would prefer not to comment until he has had an opportunity to go over the staff study.

There was no indication as to when this study might be ready.

Four of the 17 members of the Senate Armed Services Committee are on record in favor of the retirement pay equalization measure. They are Senators J. Glenn Beall (R-Md), Strom Thurmond (D-SC), Clair Engle (D-Calif), and Henry Jackson (D-Wash).

Armed Services Committee Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) has told THE JOURNAL that some other Senators who were opposed to the measure last year "have changed their minds."

Senator Saltonstall, who normally supports the Administration, has commented on the fact that the Administration, itself, has reversed its position and is now strongly supporting the equalization plan. When this happens, he noted, "the Congress usually changes its mind, also."

General LeMay Directs Commanders: Choose "Best" Officers For Aerospace Course

THE Air Force has ordered commanders to choose their "best officers" for instruction in the latest space systems developments.

The instruction will be given at a special one-week course, which began this month at the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala. Approximately 100 officers are in the present class.

In a letter to all major ZI commanders, General Curtis E. LeMay, Vice CofS, said that "it is essential" that the majority of Air Force personnel grasp the latest aerospace research knowledge.

General LeMay pointed out that "technological breakthroughs occur often and are generally made by a few individuals. Those with technical backgrounds are usually the first to grasp this new knowledge and its implications; the remaining majority lag behind."

"It is essential," he said, "that this majority of Air Force personnel grasp the new knowledge although at a different level. This level could well be conceptual and cover understandings, judgments, appreciations, realizations and attitudes."

"These, in my opinion, are the ingredients that combine to make our aerospace mission unique among military forces," he said.

General LeMay urged commanders to give the new course their "wholehearted support and ascertain that your best officers attend."

The Space Systems Orientation Course at Maxwell is designed for lieutenant colonels, colonels and general officers.

Each class will have approximately 100 students.

PX Sales Hit $895 Million

From first page—

increased operational efficiency would permit the retention of reduced prices put into effect over the past several years.

They could not foresee the possibility, however, of any further major price cuts in the face of rising costs and reduced gross profit margins.

Of the $895 million sales total, $121 million was spent by Servicemen and their families for food items, a rise of $3.2 million.

The fact that PX sales have increased at a time when manpower was being reduced is attributable to a rise in per capita sales—up $33.20 over fiscal 1959.

Surveying the future of PX operations, General Laux said that there would be increased reliance on automatic vending devices, which are particularly well suited to fill the needs of men at isolated stations, such as missile sites.

The Exchange Service, with 67,523 employees, provides services at 622 installations in the United States and at more than 3600 outlets overseas.

Col. Edgar Gets Army-AF Awards

Col. James D. Edgar, CofS at Ft. Lee, Va., under orders to Okinawa, has received the Army and Air Force Commendation Medals.

Maj. Gen. Alfred B. Denniston, CG of the QM Training Command, presented him the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal. Later the same day, he received the Air Force medal, first ever given to an Army officer by headquarters Washington Air Defense Sector at Ft. Lee. Making that presentation was Brig. Gen. Ernest H. Beverly, WAADS commander.

Colonel Edgar's new duties will be that of commanding officer, QM Group, Okinawa. His wife and two daughters, Jacqueline Ann, 17, and Janice Lea, 13, will accompany him to his new assignment.

Quantico Will Host Service Athletes

Interservice Track and Field Championships will be conducted 10-11 June at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.

The Championships will be the official Armed Forces Olympic Qualifying Trials. Winners of each event will be eligible to compete in the final Olympic Track and Field Trials to be conducted at Stanford University 1-2 July.

Second and third place winners in each event also may be sent to the finals if their performances are considered to be good enough by the Olympic Committee.

Former Russian Lt. Col. Ends Signal Corps Career

Morris Kaplan, a Russian Army lieutenant colonel in WWI, has retired from the U.S. Army Signal Corps, where he has worked as a cartographic engineer since 24 March 1930.

His wife, with whom he lives at 2816 South Eighth Street, Arlington, Va., is a former nurse in the Russian Navy. Their son, Samuel, is an attorney with the Federal Power Commission.

Maj. Gen. R. T. Nelson, Signal Corps Chief, in commending Mr. Kaplan for his service, stated: "I extend my appreciation and sincere thanks for the continuous outstanding contributions you have rendered to the U.S. Army Signal Corps. Your sincerity, loyalty, and devotion to duty have been an inspiration to those with whom you have been associated throughout the years. The high caliber of work done by you has made easier the presentation and understanding of many of the Signal Corps programs."

NAVY

GUIDES

The Corvus missile "steered" past a major milestone when its first guided flight was accomplished last March with complete success. Being developed for the United States Navy by Temco, the Corvus air-to-surface missile was first successfully air-launched last July. The missile is designed to penetrate heavily defended areas . . . deadly to tough targets ashore or afloat.

Corvus, utilizing a pre-packaged liquid engine, is launched from carrier-based aircraft.

MISSILE DEPUTY

Brig. Gen. Roger M. Crow, Fifteenth Air Force Director of Operations at March AFB, Calif., will become Deputy Commander for the 1st Missile Division at Vandenberg AFB, Calif., and will be succeeded by Col. Jean B. Miller, jr.

Col. Kenneth R. Powell becomes CofS for the 1st Missile Division; and Col. James H. S. Rasmussen assumes the Base Commander's duties, replacing Col. Charles G. Allen, new Deputy Chief of the AF Ballistic Missile Division Field Office, also at Vandenberg.

B/G Tribe Heads QM Research Work

Brig. Gen. Merrill L. Tribe has assumed command of Quartermaster Research and Engineering Command Headquarters at Natick, Mass.

Former Commanding Officer of the Army's Quartermaster Supply Center, Giessen, Germany, he will direct research and engineering efforts at the QM R&E Center Laboratories, Natick; QM Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces, Chicago, and QM R&E Field Evaluation Agency, Ft. Lee, Va.

General Tribe is married to the former Marjorie Riley of Salt Lake City. They have three children.

Civilian-Military Pay Scales Compared

THE following comparison of Federal civilian and military pay is contained in newly released hearings of a special House Armed Services Subcommittee on Manpower Utilization.

CIVILIANS.—Since the pay provided bluecollar workers and foreign nationals is based on the wages prevailing for such skills in the local labor market, it does not lend itself to a single tabular listing. Therefore, no effort is made to reflect this area of Federal compensation. However, in the case of classified or graded Federal employees, the following compensation schedule presently applies:

GS-18	$17,500
GS-17	15,855
GS-16	14,670
GS-15	13,370
GS-14	11,835
GS-13	10,370
GS-12	8,810
GS-11	7,510
GS-10	6,805
GS-9	6,285
GS-8	5,770
GS-7	5,280
GS-6	4,790
GS-5	4,340
GS-4	3,945
GS-3	3,685
GS-2	3,445
GS-1	3,150

MILITARY PERSONNEL.—Although the compensation provided military personnel includes items not particularly susceptible to average costing, such as hazardous-duty pay, clothing allowances, travel allowances, medical and death benefits, retirement benefits, and the like, the direct labor cost of military personnel is reasonably reflected in the following table, which includes the total dollar remuneration normally accruing to military personnel annually:

O-10	$29,124
O-10	25,224
O-9	21,132
O-8	18,828
O-7	16,728
O-6	13,140
O-5	10,860
O-4	9,336
O-3	7,932
O-2	6,144
O-1	4,620
W-4	8,532
W-3	7,452
W-2	6,420
W-1	5,748
E-9	6,807
E-8	5,967
E-7	5,247
E-6	4,587
E-5	3,807
E-4	3,207
E-3	2,515
E-2	2,359
E-1	2,323
E-1	2,263

■ Latest big step toward operational status for the supersonic Corvus missile was its highly successful first guided flight. It was launched from an A3D jet aircraft at a surface target in the sea test area of the Pacific Missile Range. ■ The Navy's continuing high interest in the Corvus was reaffirmed by a recent contract award to Temco for continued development and flight test work. While the Corvus is being developed by Temco for the Navy, the U. S. Air Force has kept the Corvus under close scrutiny since its inception, furthering the policy of inter-service cooperation. ■ Temco has the Prime Weapon System responsibility for development of the Corvus missile. In discharging this responsibility, Temco draws upon the talents and facilities of the entire corporation . . an organization of over 6,000 skilled personnel engaged in the development and manufacture of electronic systems and devices, missiles, airframes and industrial products.

M/G Minton Leads Military Engineers

Maj. Gen. A. M. Minton, the Air Force's Director of Civil Engineering has been elected President of the Society of American Military Engineers.

General Minton is a Registered Professional Engineer in the District of Columbia. In addition to membership in the Society of American Military Engineers, he is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the National Society of Professional Engineers. He has been the Director of Civil Engineering for the Air Force since 1957.

General Minton is responsible for all construction matters for the Air Force. This field includes the programming and supervision of an annual expenditure of some $750 million for new construction; nearly $750 million annually for the maintenance and operation of Air Force facilities; the supervision of a military housing program valued in excess of one billion dollars; and the acquisition, management and disposition of real property and facilities now valued at nearly $11 billion.

15th Army Field Hospital Aids Quake Victims

At the disaster scene in earthquake-ravaged Puerto Montt, Chile, JOURNAL reporter Frank Best, left, is briefed by officers of the 15th Army Field Hospital, Ft. Bragg, N. C., commanded by Lt. Col. Arthur A. Terrill. They are, left to right: Capt. J. D. Breen, Detachment CO; Maj. E. Reuter, Executive Officer; Capt. H. S. Smith, Medical Supply Officer, and Capt. J. L. Bend, Chief of Surgery. Captain Smith's wife is Capt. Kathleen Smith, WAF, Director of Administration for Pope AFB, N. C.

The 7th Field Hospital, Ft. Belvoir, Va., commanded by Lt. Col. Howard G. Kreiger, is deployed at Valdivia, Chile.

Air Ambulances Score In Chile

SANTIAGO, CHILE
VANGUARD units of the Army Medical Service's first medical "air ambulance" company are putting the new Bell Iroquois helicopter through its paces throughout the earthquake-stricken areas in the south of this country.

They are flying supplies and injured between devastated areas in southern Chile and the two Army field hospitals at Puerto Montt and Valdivia.

Each of the helicopters is piloted by a Medical Service Corps officer to assure immediate professional assistance to the disaster victims.

Upon completion of their mercy mission here, the two detachments will return to the ZI to be re-formed into a four-platoon 45th Medical Company (Air Ambulance) with headquarters at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

It will be the first Helicopter Ambulance Company in the Army.

Units operating here are the 56th Medical Detachment (Helicopter Ambulance), Ft. Bragg, N. C., commanded by Capt. Donald T. Wall, MSC, and the 57th Medical Detachment (Helicopter Ambulance), Ft. Meade, Md., under Capt. Joseph I. Martin, jr., MSC. Each of the detachments has five Bell HU1A Iroquois helicopters here.

When the detachments return to the ZI, they will be incorporated in the 45th Medical Company as the 56th and 57th Medical Platoons (Air Ambulance), respectively, and will remain at their present stations.

The remaining platoons of the 45th will be the: 21st Medical Platoon (Helicopter Ambulance), to be activated at Ft. Benning, Ga.; and the 47th Medical Platoon (Helicopter Ambulance), which will be activated from the 37th Medical Detachment at Ft. Ord, Calif.

The new 45th Medical Company will be completely equipped with Iroquois helicopters.

At present the Army Medical Service has only 12 Iroquois. Ten are here and two more are at Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Eventually, the Army Medical Service hopes to replace all its H-19 and H-13 helicopters with Iroquois models.

Future Iroquois to be used as flying ambulances will be configured to hold three litters in place of the two-litter configuration used on the 10 helicopters here.

The Iroquois here are designed to carry either two litter patients or four ambulatory patients and can fly at 100-110 miles per hour for a distance of over 180 miles without refueling. Each can lift more than a ton of useful load.

peals and greater protection throughout the military judicial system for those who were exposed to courts martial procedures in the Armed Forces." He noted that Congress spent months writing a new code of military justice because many "felt that courts martial were too severe and more protection had to be afforded those who were exposed to them." Representative Hébert, who had charged that a court martial of a general officer would be just "an old class reunion," told the Senate Armed Services Committee that Chairman Vinson evidently had him in mind when he made this statement. At the time of the establishment of the present UCMJ, however, Congressman Hébert said, "I was worried about the sergeants and privates. I was not worried about the generals. They can take care of themselves."

When Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine) asked some probing questions about what would happen to Regular officers who resigned and took defense jobs and joined the Reserve (where they eventually would become eligible for retired pay), Chairman Vinson said he thought they would be covered by the penalty provisions of the Hébert Bill, but if not, he hoped the Senate would amend the measure to make such provision. Then he observed that Senator Smith (who once served as a Congresswoman on Chairman Vinson's old Naval Affairs Committee) was still asking the same kind of penetrating questions she asked while she was serving in the House. These questions, Chairman Vinson noted with a smile, "kept me on my toes and disturbed all the time." Senator Smith remarked that she is still receiving her "training" at the feet of a Georgian... Chairman Richard B. Russell of the Senate Committee.

Marine Division Association Award $15,000 In Student Scholarship Grants

More than a dozen scholarships costing nearly $15,000 have been awarded by the Marine Division Associations which hold combined reunions June 24-26 in Washington, D. C.

Most of these have been granted by the 1st Marine Division Association—oldest and largest of the six USMC divisions that figured prominently in the defeat of Japan during WWII. Most of the other associations have given one or more scholarships.

Funds for this purpose come from membership dues, special donations, reunion program advertising profits and other sources. The by-laws of each association establish the granting of such scholarships as a basic purpose for existence. Other reasons are the preservation of Marine Corps traditions, honoring their war dead, and preserving the bond of comradeship between persons in the Service and those in civil life.

Primarily, the scholarship awards have been made to widows and orphans of marines who gave their lives fighting for their country. Individual awards have ranged from $200 to $3,750, depending on individual circumstances. Included have been four-year college tuition grants.

Among the recipients of marine scholarships have been: Patrick C. Henry, Baton Rouge, La.; Michael R. Wilson, Indio, Calif.; Bettie Lou Wheaton, Dayton, Ohio; Jack C. Selvey, Sacramento, Calif.; Roland L. Jackson, Newark, Del.; Mrs. Verna Maye Rice, Memphis, Tenn.; Donald C. Lee, Oceanside, Calif.; Darla C. Bard, Milwaukee, Wisc.; John T. Stittzel, Havelock, N. C.; Judith Porter, Thomasville, N. C.; Mrs. Elizabeth G. Todd, Salem, Oreg., and Barbara P. Johnson, Philadelphia, Pa.

More information about each association's scholarship program, and about the reunions can be obtained by writing the individual division representatives as follows: 1st, Edwin C. Clarke, Box 84, Alexandria, Va.; 2nd, J. E. Howarth, Jr., 4116 Lorcom Lane, Arlington, Va.; 3rd and 6th, Tom Kelly, 1418 Valley Crest Blvd., Annandale, Va.; 4th, Mortimer Doyle, 1319 18th St., N.W., Washington 6, D. C.; 5th, Joseph R. High Goals Set For USAFA Class

THE U. S. Air Force Academy's Class of '60 heard Secretary Dudley C. Sharp declare on 8 June at Colorado Springs that "some of you may well be faced with the problem of establishing bases on other planets."

The newly commissioned lieutenants were told that the Air Force is undergoing a "vast reorganization."

Secretary Sharp said: "You are leaving the academic halls and starting your careers at a particularly exhilarating and yet portentous time in the world's history. Ahead lies the excitement of new adventures in science and technology."

Recounting the current changes in the Air Force, Secretary Sharp said: "We are changing our force structure, our procurement, our priorities and our personnel skills to accommodate an ever-increasing number of missile units. We are establishing vast new missile bases and closing manned aircraft bases."

"While we do not yet know the optimum ratio between missiles and manned aircraft in our forces of the future," the Secretary declared, "each system has its advantages and each can perform essential functions that others cannot. Thus, we are certain that we will have both type weapons in our inventory as far into the future as we can see."

The USAFA Class of '61 was told that "you must never allow the narrow view of apparent Service interest to blind you to your basic duty—to cooperate with the other Services, and all departments of Government, to the end that we will have in this Nation an adequate total Defense force to achieve our National goals."

Concluding his address, the Air Force Secretary told the new officers: "We live in desperate times, my friends. Our foe is the most formidable one ever faced by any nation in history. We are threatened economically, ideologically and militarily. We will meet this challenge—and survive—only if we in America pull together as a great National Defense Team. Only by this means can the Free World remain free."

Ensign Greenman Tops At USCGA

TOPPING his class of 137 graduates at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, and receiving six awards at the presentation ceremony 7 June was Ensign Donald D. Greenman of Arlington, Va., with a final four year average of 90.513.

He was the recipient of awards for: highest academic standing for entire course; highest average in history and literature courses; proficiency in theoretical and practical seamanship; proficiency in mathematics; proficiency in physics; and highest standing in applied science.

Number two man in the Class of 1960 is Lloyd R. Lomer of Roslyn Harbor, N. Y. He was given three awards for: highest average in ordnance and gunnery; highest average in power engineering; and highest cruise average.

John R. Sprout of Mercer, Penna., received three awards for: leading his class in personal character; exhibiting highest qualities of military leadership; and highest proficiency in administration and management.

Jack W. Lewis of Uniontown, Penna., received three awards for: highest average in engineering subjects; highest interest and skill in graphics; and highest average in analytical mechanics.

USMA's Top Man Joins The Infantry

2d Lt. Charles Paddock Otstott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan D. Otstott, Jr., 3213 St. John's Drive, Dallas, the No. 1 Man in the USMA '60 graduating class, was commissioned in the Infantry.

Cadet Otstott

He holds the rare distinction of being the No. 1 Man militarily in the Corps of Cadets, with the rank of Cadet First Captain and Brigade Commander, as well as the No. 1 Man academically. Only eight other graduates, including General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, have earned this dual honor since 1871.

Lieutenant Otstott held the No. 1 position in both categories his entire four years at West Point.

He was President of the First (senior) Class.

for promotion to general officer resulting from promotion to the grade of permanent colonel.

Approximately 425 permanent lieutenant colonels will be considered for permanent promotion this month, although they have not previously been eligible for increased rank under the temporary system.

Since insignia change promotions to permanent colonel are not considered desirable, these officers will be eligible for future temporary promotions.

Historically, with few exceptions, there have been few insignia change promotions to Regular permanent colonel.

Officers eligible for consideration by the board which meets 20 June, who desire to submit written communications, are advised to insure that letters reach Headquarters before the board convenes. Letters should be addressed direct to Headquarters, USAF, Attn: PMP-4.

Using the best-qualified method of selection, consideration will extend through the permanent lieutenant colonels indicated below:

at any time has been junior" to him for promotion purposes.

The "hump" act, however, provided that the commissioned service of a non-Academy officer (for purposes of involuntary retirement and separation) would be based on the service of an Academy or NROTC officer who "has been continuously junior" to him.

This means that large numbers of officers scheduled for involuntary retirement under the "hump" act cannot be retired because there is no Naval Academy or NROTC graduate who has been "continuously" junior to them, who has not lost numbers or precedence, and who has the requisite minimum number of years of total commissioned service for retirement.

In adding the proviso to the "hump" act, Congress had something entirely different in mind. The section was intended to prevent the early retirement of certain Marine Corps majors whose promotion to lieutenant colonel the Corps desired to accelerate.

Without the proviso, the Marines concerned, upon promotion, would have been credited with additional constructive service which would have forced their early retirement.

When it turned out that the section also would bar the forced retirement of a large number of other non-Academy officers, the Navy asked the Comptroller General if it would be possible (since the language was clearly not intended as such a bar) to go ahead and retire the officers, anyway.

The Comptroller ruled that the statute, because of legal technicalities, must be "applied literally to all officers embraced within its language."

The Navy has asked Congress to change the law.

Legislation (HR 12415) was introduced in the House by Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee, and quick hearings were set.

It can be expected that the measure will win fast approval in the House and Senate.

Military Comptrollers Meet

The Washington Chapter of the American Society of Military Comptrollers, held its final 1960 luncheon 3 June at Ft. McNair.

Special recognition was given to past National Presidents, Lt. Gen. William S. Lawton, USA, and VADM, Edward W. Cleaton, USN, who are retiring from active service.

Principal speaker for the occasion was the Undersecretary of the Navy and Comptroller, the Honorable Fred A. Bantz, who was introduced by the President of the Chapter, Col. A. E. R. Howarth, USA.

Seymour-Johnson's 4th Tactical Wing Completes Transition To Republic F-105

THE 4th Tactical Fighter Wing at Seymour-Johnson AFB, N. C., late this month will be fully equipped with the Mach 2 Republic F-105 Thunderchiefs.

The 4th will be the only Wing in the Air Force to have, as their front line aircraft, the new fighter-bomber.

The last squadron to pick up their complement of F-105s will be the 333d Tactical Fighter Squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. Paul Hoza.

Although the 335th Tactical Fighter Squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. Robert Scott, was the first unit to receive the F-105B models, they are now reporting directly to TAC while they put the all-weather F-105D moders through its testing cycles at Eglin AFB, Fla.

With the runways and taxiways scheduled for completion at Seymour-Johnson on 17 June, all three tactical squadrons will be returning. First elements are expected to touch down on 18 June with the rest to follow at staggered stages.

Plans call for the 334th Tactical Fighter Squadron, headed by Maj. Charles Barnett, to depart 15 July for a minimum of 30 days Category III testing at Williams AFB, Ariz. Some 30 officers and 252 airmen plus supporting testing staff will make the move.

General Bessell attended the Command and General Staff School at Ft. INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

Aerojet Will Build Hybrid Rocket

The Navy has awarded Aerojet-General Corporation a $580,000 contract to explore a revolutionary approach to rocket power plants—a "hybrid" rocket.

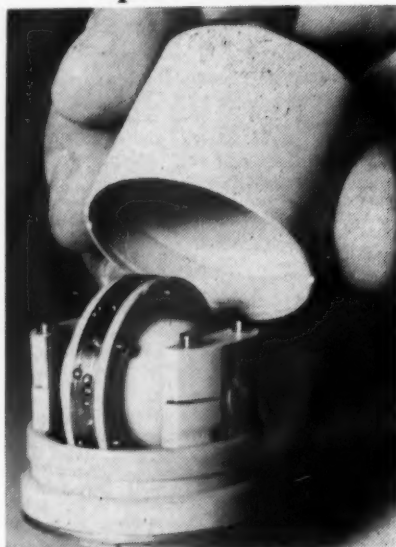

Designed to combine the best features of present liquid and solid-propellant rocket power plants, a successful hybrid propulsion system would "offer advantages of significantly greater ranges for conventional weapons, provide the start-stop and variable thrust capability needed for space missions and give propulsion scientists much greater latitude in selecting the best possible fuels and oxidizers for optimum propulsion systems," the Navy said.

The contract represents the first large-scale attempt by a government agency to combine the high performance capabilities of liquid propellants with the simplicity and compactness of solid fuels. Essentially, the hybrid rocket would employ a liquid oxidizer which would be sprayed into a core of solid fuel.

This method would give the vital start-stop and variable thrust capabilities needed for advanced weapon systems and space missions.

Current liquid propellant rocket engines burn a combination of liquid oxidizers and liquid fuels. This requires separate tanks, valves and pumps for the two liquids. The hybrid rocket would be much simpler since it would eliminate one complete system.

Spins On Gas

CERAMIC MINIATURE GYRO, which spins 24,000 revolutions a minute on bearings of helium gas, is dwarfed by a human hand. Shown above is the spin motor of Minneapolis-Honeywell's new space guidance gyroscope about to be encased in its ceramic gimbal. It weighs only slightly more than half a pound but can detect motion 7,500 times slower than the hour hand on a watch. (See story page 26 last week's JOURNAL.)

RAF Will Use Douglas ALBM Sky Bolt; Details On New Weapon Are Told

(It was announced this week that the RAF would use the Sky Bolt air-launched ballistic missile. Here is the text of a newly issued Pentagon fact sheet on the weapon).

The United States Air Force is entering a new era of global mobility for America's defense forces with the development of the GAM-87A Sky Bolt air-launched ballistic missile.

The Sky Bolt will give the Air Force a deterrent weapon system of major proportions through its ability to deliver a nuclear weapon from a highly mobile, nearly undetectable launching point.

Launched from airborne bombers of the B-52 type, the Sky Bolt will be designed to blast to a ballistic trajectory above the atmosphere and race at hypersonic speeds to a pre-determined target over 1000 miles away.

Among the many advantages of such a weapon system would be its ability to remain aloft on alert status within relatively close range of an aggressor; to be invulnerable to destruction by surface-to-surface ballistic missiles, and, through its ability to remain "hidden" from an aggressor, to formidably discourage surprise attack plans.

The rapid growth of missile technologies during the latter half of the 1950's prompted the Air Force to initiate a study program aimed at development of a long range, air-launched missile system. In October of 1957, major missile manufacturers were invited to study this concept for the Air Force.

The studies clearly demonstrated the feasibility of such a system and in January of 1959, the Air Force asked the contractors for proposals.

The Air Research and Development Command at Wright-Patterson AFB studied the proposals and on 26 May 1959 awarded a contract to the Douglas Aircraft Company to develop an air-launched ballistic missile (ALBM) system.

In August of 1959, Douglas awarded a subcontract to Aerojet-General Corporation for development of the Sky Bolt's propulsion system. The next month, General Electric received a contract for the re-entry vehicle, and in October, Norton Division of Northrop Corporation was awarded the guidance system contract.

And on 5 February 1960, the Air Force signalled the go-ahead for hardware development of the system by Douglas.

During the early stages of the missile's evolution, Boeing Airplane Company will assist Douglas to develop the system's compatibility with the B-52 bomber. Other major contractors and government agencies located across the nation are being called upon to participate in additional phases of the program.

The Sky Bolt is programmed to enter the Air Force in 1964.

Maj. Magill Rejoins MATS

Maj. Bruce L. Magill, USAF, Executive Assistant to the Executive Director, Military Traffic Management Agency has been transferred to MATS at McGuire AFB, N. J. Much of his military career has been spent with MATS.

Major Magill has been with MTMA since November 1956 as Executive Assistant to Maj. Gen. I. Sewell Morris.

ROCKETDYNE WILL BUILD HYDROGEN ENGINE

ROCKETDYNE, a division of North American Aviation, Inc., will receive a NASA contract for development of a 200,000-pound-thrust liquid hydrogen-fueled engine. Development is expected to take about three years and will cost some $44 million.

The engine, which may be used in clusters of two or four to power upper stages of advanced configurations of Saturn, initially, will be a single-start engine but can be modified readily to make it capable of multiple starts in flight.

Use of liquid hydrogen as a fuel in upper stage rockets allows significant increases in payload.

The initial Saturn will be capable of boosting 25,000 pounds into a 300-mile Earth orbit or sending 9,000 pounds on an interplanetary mission. Introduction of a new second stage consisting of a cluster of two of the new engines would increase the Saturn weight-lifting capacity by nearly 50 per cent; with a cluster of four new engines in a new second stage, the weight-lifting capacity would go up nearly 100 per cent.

The initial version of Saturn, consisting of a first stage of eight engines producing 1.5 million pounds thrust, a second stage of four 20,000-pound-thrust hydrogen engines and a third stage of two 20,000-pound-thrust hydrogen engines, will come into use in 1963. The more advanced configurations will follow in the late 1960's.

J. Walter Thompson Vice President Named AF Reserve-ROTC Deputy

SECRETARY Dudley C. Sharp has appointed Col. William P. Wright, Jr., of Scarsdale, N. Y., to the position of Deputy for Reserve and AFROTC Affairs to Lewis S. Thompson, Special Assistant for Manpower Personnel and Reserve Forces, effective 17 June.

Mr. Thompson, Vice President of J. Walter Thompson Company, New York City, succeeds Benjamin W. Fridge, San Jose, Calif., who has resigned to return to private industry. Mr. Fridge will join the William H. Singleton Company, Mechanical Contractors of Springfield, Va.

As a Colonel in the Air Force Reserve Program, Mr. Wright has been serving as a member of the Air Reserve Forces Policy Committee at USAF Headquarters, while currently participating as a Reserve Group Commander of a Reserve Training Center in New York City. He first became associated with the military in the early 1930s as a second lieutenant in college ROTC while attending Princeton University, where he was graduated with a B. S. degree in 1933.

During W. W. II Mr. Wright was on active duty from May 1941 until June 1946 when he was released, having attained the rank of lieutenant colonel. He served principally as an adjutant general in the Air Service Command and with the Ninth Air Force in the European Theater. He had entered service from executive positions in the textile industry. He returned to the textile industry after the war and in 1955 was elected to his position with the J. Walter Thompson Company.

Mr. Wright has been a colonel in the Reserve Forces since March 1950.

Aerospace Industry Profits Dip To New Low; Sharp Rise In R&D Costs A Problem

NEWLY released data from the Securities and Exchange Commission reveals that aerospace industry profits last year dropped to a new low of 1.5% on sales, compared with a 4.5% average in all manufacturing operations.

On rate of profit to net worth, the aerospace industry accounted for a return of 8%, compared with a national manufacturing average of 9.6%.

Earnings of the aerospace industry have declined steadily since 1955 when net income was 3.8% of sales.

Principal reason for this decline according to the Aerospace Industries Association, has been the technological surge of the past five years. This has seen an end to volume production runs, the prime source of earnings.

Overhead costs for research and development and new facilities have increased sharply.

In the case of an intercontinental ballistic missile, R&D accounts for 60 per cent of the total weapon dollar.

The Association noted that although the floor space area required for the aerospace industry today is only half that required three years ago, facilities are a prime problem. The old high-bay areas for aircraft production cannot be economically adapted to production methods today which require precise temperature controls, rigid inspection, checking and testing operations. New facilities must be built which cost at least three times as much, on a square foot basis, as the old facilities.

To counter the widespread impression that the Government bears the cost for these facilities, the association reported these facts. In 1957, approximately $780 million was expended for new facilities in the aerospace industry. Of this amount, about $515 million, or 66%, came from the dwindling earnings of the aerospace industry.

Backlog of orders for aircraft, aircraft engines and propellers at the end of the first quarter of 1960 amounted to $12.2 billion, an increase of 1% over the last quarter of 1959.

Total net new orders received during the first quarter of 1960 amounted to $2.8 billion, and net sales during the quarter amounted to $2.7 billion.

Orders for U. S. military customers represented 69% of the aircraft backlog, 75% of the aircraft engine backlog and 86% of the propeller backlog.

M/G ENNIS IS NAMED CG AT PARRIS ISLAND

MAJ. GEN. Thomas G. Ennis, Marine Corps Inspector General, becomes CG of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C., 28 June, succeeding Brig. Gen. R. E. Shell, who retires to become Superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington.

After General Ennis is detached, General Masters will serve as temporarily both as IG and G-2, pending assignment of another one-star officer to one or the other of the two billets.

General Ennis is married to the former Helen Smith of Wynnewood, Pa.

General Masters and his wife, the former Dorice Kengla, have two children, James, jr., 20, and Hillary Ellen, 12. One of his brothers is Col. John Hillary Masters, USMC; the other is Mr. William P. Masters, of Anderson, S. C.

Hébert Story And Missing Facts

engaged in a public debate through advertising media while a decision on the merits of their respective weapons was pending."

Congressional Target?

Although no mention was made of the fact during the Senate hearings, House Armed Services Committee members had strong reason to feel personal affront over the criminal penalty provisions of the original Hébert bill.

As revealed in THE JOURNAL (6 February), the bill, as approved by the Hébert Subcommittee, provided that any member of the House or Senate who "aids or assists anyone" before any Government department, agency, etc., in connection with any claim, controversy, accusation "or other matter" in which the U.S. is a party or "directly or indirectly interested" would be fined $10,000 or imprisoned for one year, or both.

On the face of it, this language appeared to bar Members of Congress from helping their constituents, as they do now, with knotty problems in which the Government is involved. It reportedly would even have prevented Congressmen from introducing the thousands of individual "relief" bills which they currently sponsor to help their constituents win citizenship or money due from the Government.

In another important area, as disclosed in THE JOURNAL and widely published throughout the United States, the original bill would have forced Generals of the Army Omar Bradley and Douglas MacArthur either to give up their top-ranking jobs with private industry or seek retirement from the special, lifetime active duty status granted them by Congress. This provision was amended by the House Committee so as to protect the two senior officers.

...in the finest tradition of service

The fact that the treaty ending the War of 1812 had been signed did not diminish the glory that the defense of New Orleans, under Andrew Jackson, brought to the archives of American arms. There is no brighter page in the recorded history of men who gave the last full measure of devotion to freedom.

The men who founded Federal Services accepted the obligations of sharing a tradition of service to their country and their fellow servicemen. Both they and those who have followed in their footsteps have acknowledged this obligation by extending these finest traditions to the field of financing. Federal Services is wholly dedicated to serving those who serve the nation.

Senate Eases Flying Pay Cut; Boosts B-70 Funds; Hits Service Housing

THE Senate Military Appropriations Subcommittee has restored $15 million of a $30 million cut in proficiency flying funds for fiscal '61 that had been voted by the House.

At the same time, the Committee said it will raise the House-imposed ceiling on the number of officers who can be retained on flying status during the next 12 months. The $15 million increase would be pro-rated to permit retention of about 98,850 officers on flying status. This would be a cut of about 1316, compared with the House ceiling of 97,546, which meant a reduction of 3600.

The Committee approved the House increase in Army Modernization funds.

It eliminated $115 million, which the House had provided for an airborne alert. Remaining in the budget is $85 million for an airborne alert.

The Committee restored $294 million in Bomarc funds. This includes $40.4 million, asked by the Administration, and $253.6 million in prior year funds which had been eliminated by the House. Also approved was $75 million to complete two northwest Bomarc sites.

The Senate Committee struck out $215 million in F-106 money recommended by the House.

Here are the most important additions and deletions voted by the Committee:

Airlift—Approved $200 million of the $250 million in extra funds voted by the House for airlift modernization. The Pentagon had said it wanted only $100 million. The Senate group knocked out a special airlift "bank account" set up by the House and eliminated set-aside language which would have forced MATS to utilize up to $80 million of its funds solely for procurement of commercial airlift.

B-70—Added $285 million to the President's requested $75 million for the Mach 3 bomber for a total of $360 million. The House had approved only the $75 million.

Carrier—Restored $29 million eliminated by the House for construction of a conventional Forrestal class carrier.

Travel—Restored $15 million of a House cut of $73 million in travel funds for the Armed Forces.

Communications—Restored the $84.3 million House cut in communications funds.

Family Housing—Added $9 million to an $11 million House cut in maintenance funds for Wherry and Capehart units, for a total reduction of $20 million.

Polaris—Approved a $241 million House increase in the Polaris program to fully fund five FBM submarines and partially fund seven others.

Anti-submarine Warfare—Eliminated $58 million of $100 million added to ASW research and development programs by the House. The Senate Committee also chopped out $50 million in ASW which the House had added for two destroyer escorts, and $57 million which the House voted for a nuclear attack submarine. Two other atomic submarines added by the House were retained.

Procurement—Restored a $400 million House cut (3% in all Services) in procurement funds.

Satellites—Eliminated $54 million added by the House to accelerate the Discoverer, Midas, and Samos projects.

Minuteman—Killed $30 million added by the House.

Emergency Funds—Provided authority for DoD to utilize up to $150 million in transfer funds to speed the Minuteman, or the three satellite programs, provided such action becomes desirable. The funds could also be used for other programs.

Army Reserve Forces—Approved a House increase of $105.4 million to maintain the Army National Guard and Army Reserve at 400,000 and 300,000 respectively.

Headquarters Staffs—Restored $20 million of a $33.6 million House cut designed to force a 3000-man reduction in headquarters staffs around the world.

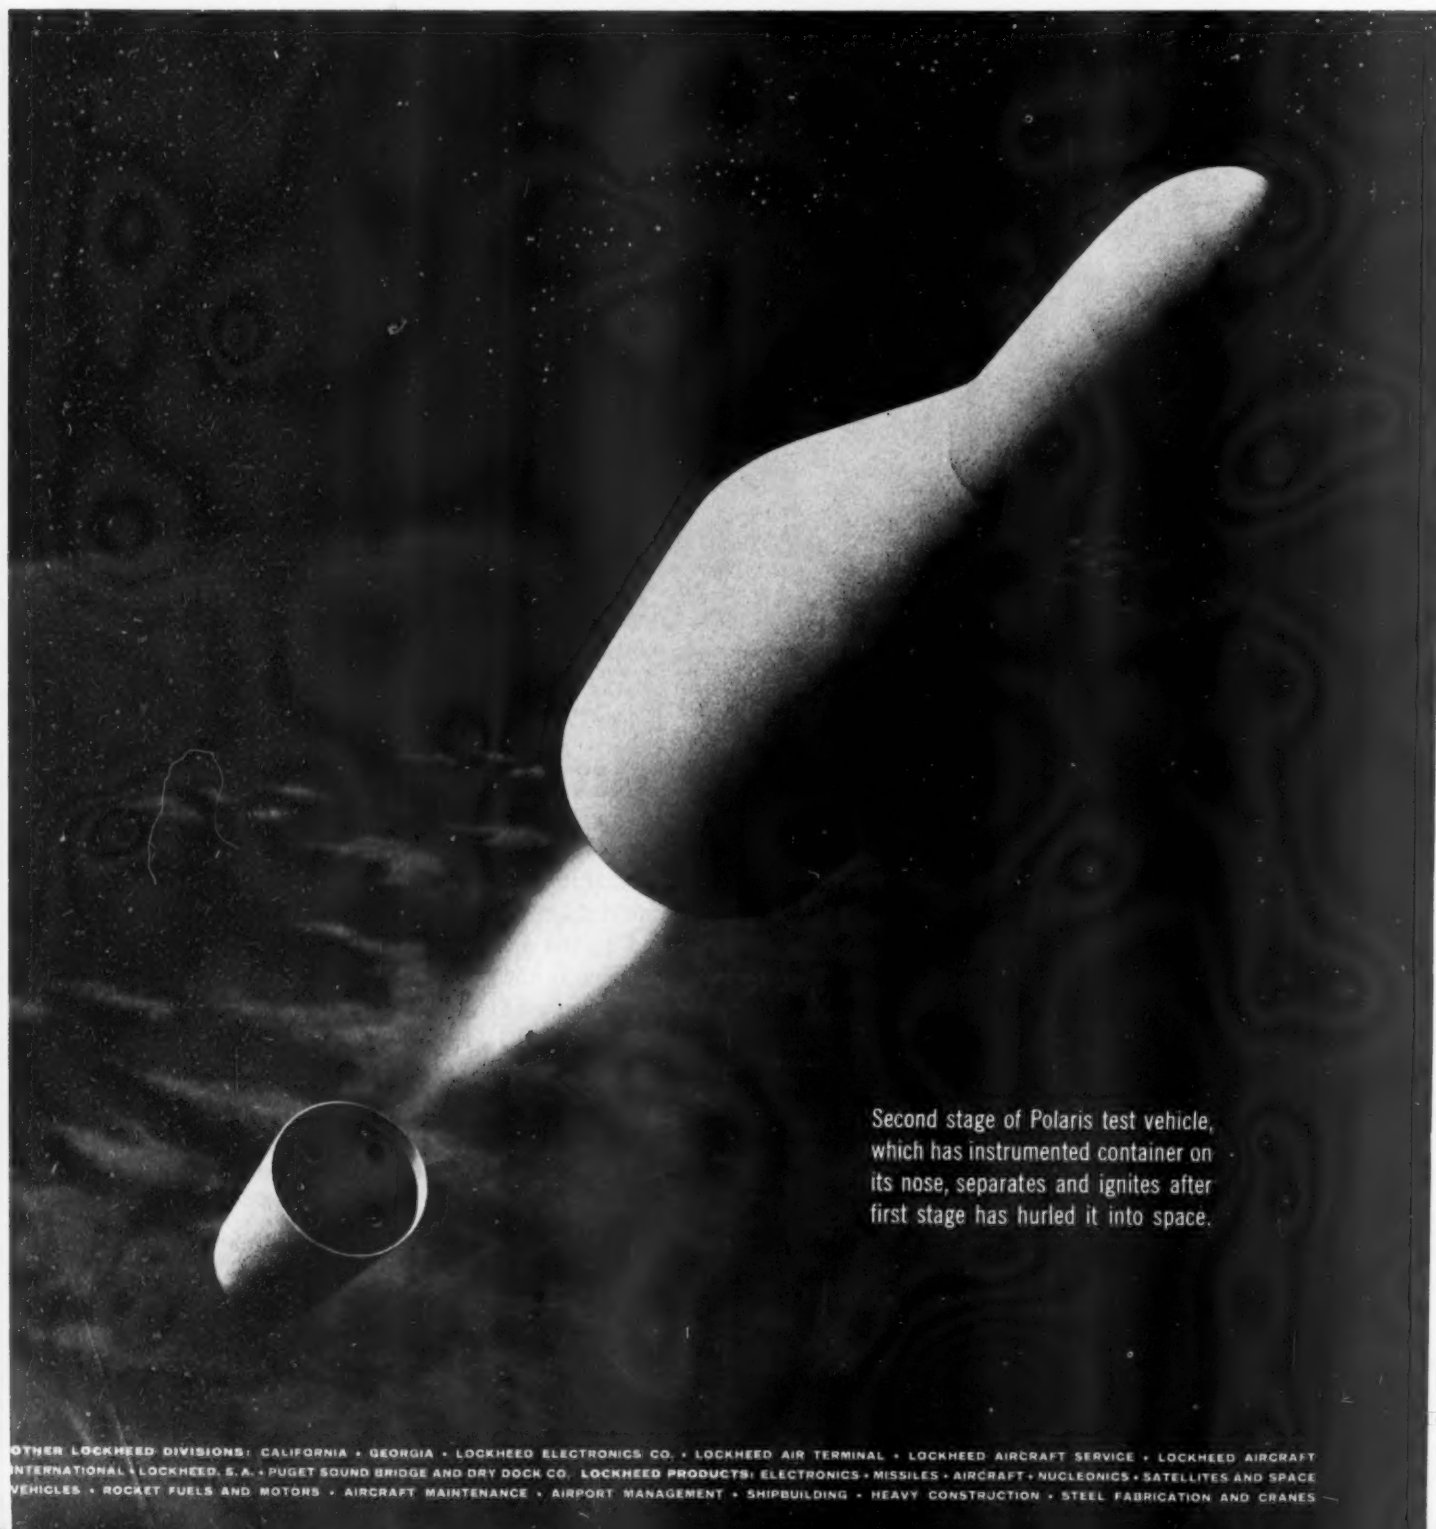

The Navy's Polaris will use

3/4 OF THE GLOBE FOR A LAUNCH PAD

A solid-propellant missile that will be launched from ocean depths. A nuclear-powered submarine that will cruise for months without surfacing. The Navy has combined them in the Fleet Ballistic Missile system. Each nuclear sub will be a mobile missile base, capable of patrolling 70% of the earth's surface, ready to launch 16 Polaris missiles in as many minutes. Aerojet-General furnishes the propulsion for the Polaris missile, General Electric the guidance. Lockheed is prime contractor and system manager.
